After Hurricane Struck British Isles

Plucked From Irish Sea

Two soldier passengers off the sunken steamer Princess Victoria hold welcome cups of tea after being landed by rescue boat at Donaghadee, near Belfast, North Ireland. Winter Floods Devastate Britain

Holland Has Toll of 464 as Dikes Crumble Under Raging Sea

May Pass 1,000 Mark

Amsterdam, The Netherlands, Feb. 2 (AP)—Mountainous new tides rolled in upon Europe's battered coasts today, bringing fresh peril to lands which already have counted more than 850 dead in a weekend of hurricane and flood. The toll may pass the 1,000 mark when all bodies are recovered.

Towering waves pounded through ancient dikes at 70 places and covered a sixth of Holland with salt water, bringing the country's worst disaster since the 15th century. The death toll according to the best available count, mounted to 464.

Britain counted 395 dead, 248 in floods, 132 in the sinking of the ferry Princess Victoria and 15 in the disappearance of a British trawler.

Belgium had 17 drownings.

Bernhard to Return

New York, Feb. 2 (AP) — Prince Bernhard of The Netherlands decided today to return immediately to his flood-stricken homeland "because my place is with the Dutch people in the time of their tragedy."

The Prince, husband of Queen Juliana, canceled plans to be here for the week, and said he will catch a plane tomorrow back to Europe.

He previously had planned to participate in week-long ceremonies in connection with the 300th anniversary of the founding of New York city by the Dutch.

Amsterdam, The Netherlands, Feb. 2 (AP)—The Dutch radio said today it has received unconfirmed reports of the death of 70 persons at Stellendam, South Holland. This would boost the death toll in the Netherlands flood disaster to 464 and push the overall figure for Europe past 850 dead.

Stellendam is a town of about 2,000 population on the Island of Goeree-Overflakkee, about 25 miles southwest of Rotterdam. The report said hundreds of persons there were stranded on rooftops and in trees.

Britain counted 389 dead, Belgium 10 and 10 others died at sea when a trawler went down.

Brave little Holland mustered all its strength to meet the disaster. Flood waters whipped up by hurricane winds over the weekend poured over crumbled dikes in the sorely-stricken southwest area. The waters reached 40 miles inland.

Damage in the British Isles, Belgium and the Netherlands ran into the millions of dollars.

French Quiz Dulles on Formosa

Officials Are Concerned in Paris Over Plan, Since Spread of Far East War Feared

Secretary Would Get Answers Why French Feet Dragging

Paris, Feb. 2 (AP)—Top French government officials fired anxious questions at U. S. Secretary of of State John Foster Dulles today on President Eisenhower's reported intention of ending the U. S. Seventh Fleet's blockade around the Nationalist Chinese forces of Formosa.

Dulles met all morning with the officials. He had many questions to ask, himself, about why France was dragging her feet for European unity.

But the French turned the meeting into one of questions on their own part. French sources said French officials were deeply concerned over parts of the American President's State of the Union message to Congress—which they saw in advance of delivery. Dulles called for an advance copy of the message for use in meetings that were to continue this afternoon after he lunched with Premier Rene Mayer.

French Are Worried

The French are particularly worried that Eisenhower's reported decision to withdraw the Seventh Fleet may spread the fighting in the Far East.

French Foreign Office sources have said Foreign Minister Georges Dibault certainly will bring up the matter during his talks with Dulles and U. S. Foreign Aid Chief Harold Stassen.

Dulles and Stassen, who are making a flying 10-day tour of seven European capitals, were well prepared for the all-day session with the French, including President Vincent Auriol, Premier Rene Mayer and Bidault.

Briefing Is Given

When they flew in from Rome yesterday noon, they hurried into briefing sessions with American officials and military leaders stationed in Europe. The meetings lasted well into the night.

The French admittedly are worried that the new policy toward Formosa waters might mean the United Nations is thinking of putting Chinese Nationalists into the Korean war.

In that event, the French fear

New York Has Birthday

New York, Feb. 2 (AP)—The world's largest city celebrated its 300th birthday today. The city started life as the Dutch Colonial town of Nieuw Amsterdam, incorporated Feb. 2, 1653. The anniversary ceremonies got under way yesterday with an address by Prince Bernhard of The Netherlands in historic St. Mark's Church-in-the-Bouwerie. The prince flew here to join city officials in opening New York's festival year.

Transport Plane Carrying 39 Is Stricken at Sea

Anglo Commercial Craft Feared Down 262 Miles Southeast of Newfoundland —Second Plane Limps Back to Gander

Halifax, Nova Scotia, Feb. 2 (AP)—A four-engine British commercial transport plane with 39 persons aboard radioed an SOS from the stormy North Atlantic today and rescue planes and ships sped to the scene.

The Royal Canadian Air Force reported that the aircraft, a four-engine York operated by Skyways, Ltd., of London, was believed down 262 miles east southeast of Gander, Newfoundland.

The plane was being used to ferry British troops between London and the West Indies. It took off from the Azores late last night for Gander, Bermuda and Jamaica.

The SOS gave the plane's position as 46 degrees 15 minutes north 46 degrees 32 minutes west.

(At Scotland's Prestwick airport, officials said a second plane, unidentified but bound from Montreal to England, had messaged from over the Atlantic that it was limping back to Gander on only two of its four engines but that it did not need assistance.)

Last Regular Report

The aircraft made its last regular report to Gander at 1:35 a. m. (12:35 a. m., EST), saying it was about three-fourths of the way to Newfoundland from Lagens, in the Azores. Later the transport communications center at Gander picked up the SOS.

The RCAF sent out six Lancasters from its base at Greenwood, Novia Scotia, to search, and the U. S. Coast Guard dispatched the cutters Yakutat and Mc Cullock to the area. Coast guard planes from the base at Argentia, Newfoundland, also were ordered to join in the hunt.

The weather officer at Gander said it was believed the sea in the search area was very rough,

Unlike Staff Sergeant Robert O. Dietz, heretofore known as the county's only Medal of Honor soldier, Sgt. Shoup was not a resident of this county at the time he entered service. The son of a minister, Sgt. Shoup had moved from the county prior to reaching school age.

A month of exhaustive investigation to determine Sgt. Shoup's relationship to Ulster county came to a close today with the receipt of a letter by Howard C. President Cautions No Tax Cuts Until U. S. Budget Balance Is in Sight

President Doubts Good in 'Aiding' Those Who Fight Us

Washington, Feb. 2 (AP)—President Eisenhower announced today he is ordering the U. S. Seventh Fleet to stop shielding Communist China and, in a surprise move, he invited Congress to disavow any Roosevelt-Truman "secret understandings" which permit enslavement of people anywhere.

At home, the new Republican President cautioned against tax cuts until a balanced budget is in sight and gave his blessing to the end of all price and wage controls when present authority for them expires on April 30.

Eisenhower said the present effect of the Truman order neutralizing the Chinese Nationalist island of Formosa is to protect the very Chinese Reds who are killing American soldiers in Korea.

"We certainly have no obligation," he said, "to protect a nation fighting us in Korea."

Eisenhower's mention of secret understanding presumably referred primarily to provisions of the Yalta agreement with Russia late in World War 2.

Arrangement Criticized

Republicans long have criticized the arrangement made there by the late President Roosevelt and Premier Stalin to give Russia territorial and other concessions in the Pacific in return for a Stalin promise to enter the war against Japan.

Not until 1947 did the State Department make public what it described as the full text of the Yalta Pact.

Eisenhower stressed anew that his administration will aid other nations in the fight against Communist aggression. But he said this help will be "in the measure that they strive earnestly to do their full share of the common task."

It was a far-ranging 8,500-word address in which the Chief Executive took "Individual Liberty" for his theme and—

1. Said near-balance of the budget, and with it the prospect of tax cuts, won't come in the immediate future. He pointed to the "inherited burden of indebtedness and obligations and deficits" which he said threaten to crash through the present public debt ceiling of 275 billion dollars.

Sees Some Price Boosts

Selection of Jurors Marks Opening of Jelke's Trial

New York, Feb. 2 (AP)—Minot F. Jelke III, scion of a wealthy, socially-registered family, went on trial today on charges of luring young women into prostitution and profiting from the proceeds.

The job of choosing a "blue ribbon" jury—requested by the defense—got off to a slow start. Fifty prospective jurors were excused for various reasons in the early stages. One juror was seated.

Jelke's mother, Mrs. Ralph Teal, an attractive brunette, sat in court during the preliminary proceedings.

The cafe society vice case, involving a half dozen dazzling young women who are being held as material witnesses, has stirred a sensation in the city's night club circles.

The 22-year-old Jelke, a short, debonair man-about-town, is specifically accused of forcing three young women into prostitution, and living off the earnings of one while waiting for a big inheritance to come due.

Assistant District Attorney Anthony J. Liebler indicated the possibility that the names of vice patrons would be brought out during the trial.

"It might become necessary in the course of the trial to mention the names of men," he told the prospective jurors. "I assure you that I don't care to do so, but in order to properly try the case it might become necessary.

"You might hear the names of persons you know—they might be friends or business associates. * * * I want you to think carefully about this phase of it. You will have to honestly tell me and the defense counsel whether you can decide this case solely on facts and not because you have some personal reaction due to the mention of somebody's name you might know."

Jelke's appearance in Judge Francis L. Valente's General Sessions Court room marks the culmination of a sensational vice investigation first disclosed last August when police announced rousting Jelke and a pretty blonde companion out of bed.

A special jury, commonly known as a "blue ribbon" panel, will hear the case. Its selection was the first order of business.

The Jelke trial, involving some reported $500-a-night call girls, has given indications of providing the most lurid court testimony since Charles (Lucky) Luciano's conviction on compulsory prostitution charges in the 1930s.

Blonde, brunette and red-haired young women—held as material witnesses and describing themselves as models—are expected to testify.

Jelke, known to his friends as "Mickey," was indicted on nine

Rent Commission Sounds Out Members; CIO Promises Wage Drive, if Boosts Come

Albany, Feb. 2 (AP)—The state's temporary rent commission, facing a slam-bang legislative battle over residential rent controls, today started sounding out its own members on the issue.

The million-member state CIO leaped into the fray last night by telling the Republican-controlled Legislature that labor unions would demand wage increases to make up for any rent boosts caused by further liberalization of the state's control law.

The commission, which has authored all of the Dewey administration's rent laws in recent years, was to meet in executive session to align its forces for a tempestuous public hearing tomorrow in the Assembly chamber. New York tenant groups are expected to attend in force.

The commission was not expected to present a solid front on any of the possible courses—further relaxation of controls, elimination of controls or any stand-pat plan.

Gov. Dewey discussed the politically potent rent question last night with Republican legislative leaders and his top aides. No final decisions were announced.

In other developments atop Capitol Hills:

Democratic legislative leaders denounced a Dewey administration measure to provide for the joint election of governor and lieutenant governor. Sen. Francis J. Mahoney and Assemblyman Eugene F. Bannigan termed the proposed constitutional amendment "a further step in the direction of entrenching the powerful Dewey machine."

Today's meeting of the rent commission was the first since the 1953 session started. It was called after Commission Chairman D. Mallory Stephens had announced the public hearing for tomorrow on the entire rent-control picture.

In its attack on any relaxation of controls, the state CIO said, "Any weakening of controls at this time * * * will lower living standards, cut purchasing power and may well disrupt the economic stability of the state.

"Under such conditions, we of organized labor will have to protect the living standards of our members by the means which are available to us," the labor organization said. "Wage standards will have to be revised and contrasts renegotiated to compensate for the inflationary effects of a general rent rise."

In criticizing the proposed constitutional amendment regarding joint elections of governors and lieutenant governors, Mahoney and Bannigan said, "The gubernatorial candidate should not be an umbrella to cloak or hide or conceal a misfitted or incompetent candidate for lieutenant governor."

The proposed amendment was approved by the 1952 Legislature. It must be cleared by the 1953 or 1954 Legislature and approved by the electorate before it may become operative.

Tug Walkout Halts Ships In Three Eastern Ports

New York, Feb. 2 (AP)—Strikes of tugboat men today curbed shipping in the ports of New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk, Va.

Official start of the strike was Saturday midnight after a breakdown of contract negotiations between the boat owners and three locals of the United Marine Division of the AFL International Longshoremen's Association (ILA). The men walked out on a staggered basis, some of them before the deadline.

Oil barge crews in the port of New York also walked out, and the metropolis girded for possible shortages of coal and fuel oil.

The stoppage involves 3,500 workers and 450 harbor craft here. Eighty tugs and barges were idled at Philadelphia and 28 in Norfolk and Hampton Roads, Va.

$5,000 Loss Estimated From Auto Accident on Esopus Bridge

County Highway Department men this morning began repair work on Cantine's Bridge which was knocked out of commission by an automobile accident early Saturday morning.

A tentative estimate has placed the damage at $5,000, it was reported today by James F. Loughran, highway superintendent.

Date Withheld

The bridge, which spans the Esopus creek on the Lomontville-Atwood road, has been closed to all traffic, including pedestrian. It will be made passable "as soon as physically possible," Loughran said today, although he was unable to name a tentative date because of the nature of the damage and possible seasonal weather difficulties.

The bridge was struck about 2:30 a. m. Saturday by an automobile driven by Ralph Steward, 21, a U. S. Marine staff sergeant, whose home is at 1541 North Sev-

Bannigan termed the proposed constitutional amendment "a further step in the direction of entrenching the powerful Dewey machine."

Today's meeting of the rent commission was the first since the 1953 session started. It was called after Commission Chairman D. Mallory Stephens had announced the public hearing for tomorrow on the entire rent-control picture.

In its attack on any relaxation of controls, the state CIO said, "Any weakening of controls at this time * * * will lower living standards, cut purchasing power and may well disrupt the economic stability of the state.

"Under such conditions, we of organized labor will have to protect the living standards of our members by the means which are available to us," the labor organization said. "Wage standards will have to be revised and contrasts renegotiated to compensate for the inflationary effects of a general rent rise."

In criticizing the proposed constitutional amendment regarding joint elections of governors and lieutenant governors, Mahoney and Bannigan said, "The gubernatorial candidate should not be an umbrella to cloak or hide or conceal a misfitted or incompetent candidate for lieutenant governor."

The proposed amendment was approved by the 1952 Legislature. It must be cleared by the 1953 or 1954 Legislature and approved by the electorate before it may become operative.

Tug Walkout Halts Ships In Three Eastern Ports

New York, Feb. 2 (AP)—Strikes of tugboat men today curbed shipping in the ports of New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk, Va.

Official start of the strike was Saturday midnight after a breakdown of contract negotiations between the boat owners and three locals of the United Marine Division of the AFL International Longshoremen's Association (ILA). The men walked out on a staggered basis, some of them before the deadline.

Oil barge crews in the port of New York also walked out, and the metropolis girded for possible shortages of coal and fuel oil.

The stoppage involves 3,500 workers and 450 harbor craft here. Eighty tugs and barges were idled at Philadelphia and 28 in Norfolk and Hampton Roads, Va.

Employer and union representatives scheduled separate meet-

Lands in Tagus River

Lisbon, Portugal, Feb. 2 (AP)—A British flying boat landed safely in the Tagus river near here today after an engine caught fire during its flight from the Atlantic island of Madeira. The crew and 30 passengers aboard were unharmed.

The four-engined plane, owned by the Aquila Airways, developed the engine fire on its regular run from the Portuguese island, 600 miles south of Lisbon, to Southampton, Eng.

Sabre Jets Bag Two More MIGs; Red Bunkers Hit

Seoul, Feb. 2 (AP) — U. S. sabre jets tangled with Russian-built MIGS all along MIG Alley today. Pilots reported shooting down two Red jets, probably destroying another and damaging two more.

It was the 15th straight day of dog fights in Far Northwest Korea. The Air Force said today's battles ranged from an altitude of 8½ miles down to 500 feet.

The flashing air battles came after U. S. Superforts and fighter-bombers struck heavily at Communist battle front positions Sunday night and early today. The Air Force said it was the biggest B-29 strike on Communist bunkers and gun positions in a year.

100 Tons Pound Reds

Far East Air Forces reported 10 of the big bombers dumped 100 tons of high explosives on the Reds. Fifth Air Force fighter-bombers followed up the raid early today.

At least 17 bunkers and five gun positions were reported smashed.

The Eighth Army said the sharpest ground fighting broke out on the western front near shell-battered Old Baldy Hill. Allied troops withdrew from an outpost position after a two-hour night assault by 80 Chinese, but reoccupied the hill before daybreak without resistance.

Elsewhere only sporadic patrol clashes were reported.

The eighth army said allied tanks completed a three-week bunker busting shoot on the central front—from the Kumhwa ridges to Whitehorse Mountain—and that tank crews reported hitting a total of 1,000 bunkers. The army said more than a half-mile stretch of Chinese trenches were destroyed.

1,033 Planes are Lost

The tankers did most of their shooting from dug in, sandbagged positions on the main allied line.

In Tokyo, Far East naval headquarters reported the navy and marine corps had lost 1,033 planes in the first 30 months of the Korean War. Of the total, 471 losses were attributed to Communist ground fire and fighter planes and 562 were blamed on operational accidents.

The navy said more rockets, bombs and bullets had been used on the Reds than U. S. navy air power used throughout World War 2.

Combined navy, marine and air force aircraft losses were listed at 1,733 as against 792 Communist planes reported as definitely destroyed and more than 900 others probably destroyed or crippled.

McLaren Reports He Was Offered Fee

Hudson, Feb. 2 (AP)—District Attorney John N. McLaren testified today that Benjamin Goldstein, a 55-year-old taxi operator, in 1949 promised him $100 a month for tip-offs on gambling raids.

McLaren was the first witness in Goldstein's bribery trial, an outgrowth of the state's probe into Columbia county gambling and possible political corruption.

McLaren told the State Supreme Court jury that Goldstein threw a $100 bill on McLaren's desk in December, 1949, and then told him there would be "$100 a month thereafter."

Goldstein said he did not want me to do "anything illegal," McLaren said, but wanted to be informed if the district attorney's office planned any action against the crap game and the numbers game.

McLaren took office in January, 1950.

Money Was Returned

The money was returned a few days later through a third party, McLaren said.

On cross-examination, McLaren said he had not reported the incident to the police chief or to Thomas P. Kennedy, then district attorney.

McLaren said that when he took office he took no action against Goldstein.

Goldstein, once convicted of gambling, is charged with two counts of bribery.

As the trial opened, Justice Henry Ughetta denied a defense motion for dismissal of the indictment. The defense contended that the indictment did not list the specific acts that Goldstein allegedly asked McLaren to perform.

Ellenville Couple Hurt In Napanoch Accident

An Ellenville couple was injured in an automobile accident on Route 209 at Napanoch about 12:30 p. m. Saturday, state police reported.

State police said the automobile skidded off the pavement, struck an embankment and overturned. No arrest was made.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Feb. 2 (AP)—Aircrafts and some steels and motors improved today in the stock market when President Eisenhower's State of the Union speech was made public.

All three of those divisions could be put in the class that Wall Street calls war stocks.

Despite the gains, the market as a whole remained on the downside with railroads showing the most pronounced sag.

Prices spread out over a range of between 1 and 2 points either way with the bulk of the changes in smaller fractions.

Aircrafts and motion pictures were ahead from the start of trading while all other major divisions were unchanged to lower.

Just after the Eisenhower message was released, the aircrafts added to their gains while motors and steels perked up from the lows. Later the oils showed slight betterment.

Napanoch Native

present home at Brocton in western New York, disclosed his son was born in the Methodist parsonage at Napanoch on January 11, 1921. The attending physician was Dr. Walter Thayer, then superintendent of Napanoch prison.

The younger Shoup never attended school in this county, as his family moved shortly after his birth to Calicoon. In the 1930's, the Rev. Mr. Shoup served a parish at Trout Creek, Delaware county, and later was a pastor at the North Scriba Baptist Church.

Graduating from the Oswego High School in 1940, Shoup entered service in July, 1943, and first trained at Camp Davis, N. C. with the Coast Artillery. He went overseas with the infantry in November, 1944, meeting death two months later, on his 24th birthday, at Tillet, Belgium.

In addition to being posthumously awarded this nation's highest military honor, S/Sgt. Shoup also was awarded the British Military Medal from King George, and two medals from Belgium, the Order of Leopold with Palms, and the Belgian Croix de Guerre with Palms.

Citation of Award

The citation which accompanied the Medal of Honor discloses the circumstances surrounding his death. It reads:

"Sgt. Shoup was an assistant squad leader with Company I, 346th Infantry Regiment, near Tillet, Belgium, when his company attacked German troops on rising ground. Intense hostile machine-gun pinned down and threatened to annihilate the American unit in an exposed position where frozen ground made it impossible to dig in for protection. Heavy artillery fire from enemy batteries was added to the storm of destruction facing the Americans. Realizing that the machine-gun must be silenced at all costs, Sgt. Shoup, armed with an automatic rifle, crawled to within 75 yards of the enemy emplacement. He found that his fire was ineffective from this position, and, completely disregarding his own safety, stood up and grimly strode ahead into the murderous stream of bullets, firing his low-held weapon as he went. He was hit several times and finally knocked to the ground. But he struggled to his feet and staggered forward until close enough to hurl a grenade, wiping out the enemy machine gun nest with his dying action. By his heroism, fearless determination and supreme sacrifice, Sgt. Shoup eliminated a hostile weapon which threatened to destroy his company and turned a desperate situation into victory."

Lived Near Oswego

Because of Sgt. Shoup's family moves prior to his enlistment or induction, it is difficult to pinpoint any specific area as his "home." In his letter received this morning, the Rev. Mr. Shoup mentions that "as a son of a minister, we do not know where to claim his legal residence, except at the place of birth." He does point out that they were living near Oswego when his son entered service.

It is clear from newspaper clippings sent by the father that Oswego county has already claimed Sgt. Shoup as its first Medal of Honor soldier of World War 2.

An Army Transport Ship, formerly the Sprindle Eye, was renamed the Sgt. Curtis Shoup in his honor.

Presentation of the Medal of Honor was made to the Rev. Mr. Shoup at the Federated church, Stockton, by Brig. Gen. Ralph K. Robertson.

The investigation which led to the disclosure that Sgt. Shoup was a native Ulster county man began when Albert Melville, a member of Ulster Detachment, Marine Corps League, started to check a report that a Marine captain from Ulster county had been awarded the Medal of Honor.

Inquiry made of the State Adjutant General brought a reply that there were only two Ulster county residents listed among Medal of Honor recipients: Sgts. Dietz and Shoup. Sgt. Robert Dietz was well known here, but Shoup was unknown.

Born at Napanoch

Maj. Gen. Robert W. Hasbrouck, U.S.A., retired, checked records in Washington at the request of Director Shurter of the Veterans Service Agency, reporting back that Shoup's record listed his birthplace as Napanoch.

Hearing this information broadcast, the Rev. Milton Ryan wrote to Bob Browning, local newscaster, that he knew of a Rev. Curtis Shoup who had a parish at Trout Creek, Delaware county, and who had a son killed in the war.

A letter to Geroge F. White, editor of the Walton Reporter, ascertained that the Rev. Mr. Shoup served at Trout Creek, near Walton, in the 1930's, and was presently living at Brocton.

Additional, confirming information was received from several sources, and Shurter last week wrote to the Rev. Mr. Shoup at Brocton. His reply was received today.

French Quiz

Red China might send troops to help the Communist-led Vietminh fighting the hard-pressed foreign forces in Indochina. The Chinese Reds already are helping the Vietminh rebels with arms and supplies.

Dulles, on the other hand, wants to find out from the French what they intend to do about getting western European unity to working.

Their Feet Dragging

The French have been dragging their feet on the proposed European Defense Community (EDC), which would rearm West Germany to help defend west Europe. The French, who thought up the plan in the first place and then stalled after giving it a second look, fear a rearmed Germany.

In a radio address on his arrival yesterday, the U. S. secretary saluted the French leaders for inspiring the "constructive and imaginative" Schuman coal-steel plan and the EDC. But he pointedly added:

"Such creative thinking and planning has caught the imagination of the American people and we want to know more about your purposes and plans for the future so that we can take them into account in our planning."

Italy Will Continue

Dulles already has been told in Rome that Italy will continue to support the defense plan. After his visits here and in London, he will go to the other nations involved in the six-country army plan—West Germany, the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg.

Another thing bothering Dulles is the tendency by France and some other North Atlantic Pact nations to slow down on their military defense buildup. He was thoroughly briefed on this by such Americans as Ambassador William Draper, Jr., U. S. special representative in Europe, and Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, supreme allied commander in Europe.

Grass Fire Among Blazes Checked

Firemen answered three calls over the weekend; one for a blaze believed of incendiary origin, another for a dog coop fire, and one for an unseasonal grass fire.

A vacant barn on the Hasbrouck Park hill was damaged by a blaze, which authorities consider of incendiary origin. The call for this was at 7:11 p. m., Saturday. It was quenched with Indian pumps.

A call at 3:53 p. m., Saturday, was for the dog coop fire on the property of Fred Markle, Pettit avenue, and one at 12:14 p. m., Sunday was for a grass fire on the Ups-and-Downs, off Hudson street.

Two Persons Are Hurt Near Belleayre Center

Two Long Island residents were hurt in an automobile collision about 11:50 a. m. Sunday at the intersection of the Onteora Trail and the road to Belleayre Ski Center at Highmount, Cpl. Ray Dunn reported.

Injured were the driver of one car, Mrs. Gloria Rose Gardi, 28, of Woodside, and a passenger, Margaret Gianfortune of Astoria. Neither person required hospitalization, according to Dunn's report. The automobile in which they were riding was in collision with an automobile driven by Clark Hubert Wagner, 23, a U. S. Marine returning to his base in North Carolina, Dunn said. No arrest was made.

Russia or Jail Offer Rejected By Reds' Lawyer

New York, Feb. 2 (AP)—Thirteen convicted Communist leaders today were ordered a choice, either go to Russia or to jail, but defense counsel promptly rejected to go-to-Russia alternative.

The judge previously had asked four of the convicted Communists how they felt about such a choice.

Three of them said vehemently they had no intention of leaving the United States. The fourth indicated she didn't like the idea, either.

Shocked by Offer

Defense Attorney John T. McTernan said he was "very much disturbed and a little shocked" at the judge's questions about such an alternative.

Five of the defendants are Russian born. Two were born in Poland, one in Trinidad, one in Hungary. Four are native Americans.

Previously, the judge had announced he would not impose maximum prison sentences of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine on the 13.

Judge Dimock said he proposed sending the convicted leaders to Russia because it appears that sending them to prison won't "do any good."

"The defendants are all convinced that what they are doing is right," he said. "And they are going to continue to do it when they get out."

Effective Cure Seen

He said living in Russia for a while might be a more effective cure.

McTernan argued the court didn't have the power to send the defendants to Russia, and besides, Russia wouldn't admit them.

"So far as I know," he declared, "banishment has never been recognized in American law and is outlawed by the Constitution itself."

After the defense had turned thumbs down on the plan, the judge agreed, "all right, we'll have no more of it."

U. S. Attorney Myles J. Lane asked for the maximum penalty as the 13 were called into court for sentencing. The judge said the punishment would not be that heavy.

Selection of Jurors

counts of procuring, compulsory prostitution and living off the proceeds of prostitution.

He has pleaded innocent to all the counts, which could result in a prison term of 16 to 134 years and fines of more than $30,000 if he is convicted.

The youthful playboy is specifically charged with inducing 19-year-old model Patricia Ward to "live a life of prostitution" from September, 1951, to March, 1952. He also is charged with living "wholly or in part" on her earnings during this period.

Other counts in the indictment accuse him of forcing Patricia Thompson, 23, model, and Marguerite Cordova, 23, a hat check girl, to engage in prostitution. All three women are material witnesses.

Miss Ward, according to New York newspaper reports, broke the vice case after Jelke reportedly jilted her for 24-year-old Sylvia Eder, who, police say, was with the defendant at the time of his arrest last August.

Red-haired model Erica Steel, 28, alleged "madam" for the call girls, was named as a co-conspirator of Jelke. She has pleaded guilty to lesser charges of maintaining a public nuisance, including a house of ill fame.

In addition to the women named in the indictment, several more alleged call girls have been held as material witnesses in the widening inquiry. A number of other men also have been charged on various vice charges.

Platinum blonde Diane Harris, 21, is the latest drawn into the probe. Prosecution officials have indicated she will be called as a witness in the Jelke proceedings.

Miss Harris has been described as an acquaintance of ex-Egyptian King Farouk's "official procurer" and as the "golden girl of cafe society." She was apprehended on a material witness charge a week ago.

Jelke is free in $50,000 bail.

No Formal Commitments

London, Feb. 2 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill told an uneasy British Parliament today he made "no formal or informal commitments" with President Dwight Eisenhower during their meetings last month. The British leader also announced Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden will make a statement about the island of Formosa tomorrow—a statement that is expected to express Britain's deep concern at a reported change in American policy toward the island on which Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist Chinese army is based.

Aged Man Missing

The family of Frederick Reis, 82, of 331 East Chester street, who has been missing from home since 10 a. m., Jan. 28, said today no word has been received to indicate where he might be. He was described at about five feet, nine inches tall, thin, weighing about 105 pounds, with gray hair and a moustache. He wore a red corduroy cap, green trousers and a brown overcoat.

Wallace Official Says Store Idea 'Never Developed'

A spokesman for The Wallace Company, of Poughkeepsie, said today that interest of the company in establishing a department store in Kingston turned out to be "an idea that never developed."

The possibilities of establishing a store here were investigated some time ago, he said, but nothing ever came of it, and probably will not, he indicated.

Reports were renewed recently that the Poughkeepsie department store company was interested in building a store here.

Approximately 20 per cent of American farm production is due to the use of fertilizers.

"What a smoky land!"

Think of it! There are 45,000,000 families in the country...

and buying 54,000,000 copies of newspapers every day.

The cigarette habit is powerful—but the newspaper habit is stronger!

No wonder newspapers are in a class by themselves—with advertisers spending twice as much in newspapers as in any other medium.

Naturally! Doesn't it make sense for advertisers to depend on the medium that customers depend on?

Sabre Jets Bag Two More MIGs; Red Bunkers Hit

Seoul, Feb. 2 (AP) — U. S. sabre jets tangled with Russian-built MIGS all along MIG Alley today. Pilots reported shooting down two Red jets, probably destroying another and damaging two more.

It was the 15th straight day of dog fights in Far Northwest Korea. The Air Force said today's battles ranged from an altitude of 8½ miles down to 500 feet.

The flashing air battles came after U. S. Superforts and fighter-bombers struck heavily at Communist battle front positions Sunday night and early today. The Air Force said it was the biggest B-29 strike on Communist bunkers and gun positions in a year.

100 Tons Pound Reds

Far East Air Forces reported 10 of the big bombers dumped 100 tons of high explosives on the Reds. Fifth Air Force fighter-bombers followed up the raid early today.

At least 17 bunkers and five gun positions were reported smashed.

The Eighth Army said the sharpest ground fighting broke out on the western front near shell-battered Old Baldy Hill. Allied troops withdrew from an outpost position after a two-hour night assault by 80 Chinese, but reoccupied the hill before daybreak without resistance.

Elsewhere only sporadic patrol clashes were reported.

The eighth army said allied tanks completed a three-week bunker busting shoot on the central front—from the Kumhwa ridges to Whitehorse Mountain—and that tank crews reported hitting a total of 1,000 bunkers. The army said more than a half-mile stretch of Chinese trenches were destroyed.

1,033 Planes are Lost

The tankers did most of their shooting from dug in, sandbagged positions on the main allied line.

In Tokyo, Far East naval headquarters reported the navy and marine corps had lost 1,033 planes in the first 30 months of the Korean War. Of the total, 471 losses were attributed to Communist ground fire and fighter planes and 562 were blamed on operational accidents.

The navy said more rockets, bombs and bullets had been used on the Reds than U. S. navy air power used throughout World War 2.

Combined navy, marine and air force aircraft losses were listed at 1,733 as against 792 Communist planes reported as definitely destroyed and more than 900 others probably destroyed or crippled.

McLaren Reports He Was Offered Fee

Hudson, Feb. 2 (AP)—District Attorney John N. McLaren testified today that Benjamin Goldstein, a 55-year-old taxi operator, in 1949 promised him $100 a month for tip-offs on gambling raids.

McLaren was the first witness in Goldstein's bribery trial, an outgrowth of the state's probe into Columbia county gambling and possible political corruption.

McLaren told the State Supreme Court jury that Goldstein threw a $100 bill on McLaren's desk in December, 1949, and then told him there would be "$100 a month thereafter."

Goldstein said he did not want me to do "anything illegal," McLaren said, but wanted to be informed if the district attorney's office planned any action against the crap game and the numbers game.

McLaren took office in January, 1950.

Money Was Returned

The money was returned a few days later through a third party, McLaren said.

On cross-examination, McLaren said he had not reported the incident to the police chief or to Thomas P. Kennedy, then district attorney.

McLaren said that when he took office he took no action against Goldstein.

Goldstein, once convicted of gambling, is charged with two counts of bribery.

As the trial opened, Justice Henry Ughetta denied a defense motion for dismissal of the indictment. The defense contended that the indictment did not list the specific acts that Goldstein allegedly asked McLaren to perform.

Ellenville Police Probe Man's Death

Ellenville village police and Dr. Charles Rosenstock, coroner, are investigating the death of Joseph Keck, 27, in his room at 3 Elting Court Saturday afternoon.

Verdict on the cause of death was withheld pending a laboratory examination after investigation by police disclosed that death might have been due to an overdose of sleeping tablets. Police said Keck was a parolee from Napanoch Institute for Male Defective Delinquents.

Ellenville Couple Hurt In Napanoch Accident

An Ellenville couple was injured in an automobile accident on Route 209 at Napanoch about 12:30 p. m. Saturday, state police reported.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Feb. 2 (AP)—Aircrafts and some steels and motors improved today in the stock market when President Eisenhower's State of the Union speech was made public.

All three of those divisions could be put in the class that Wall Street calls war stocks.

Despite the gains, the market as a whole remained on the downside with railroads showing the most pronounced sag.

Prices spread out over a range of between 1 and 2 points either way with the bulk of the changes in smaller fractions.

Aircrafts and motion pictures were ahead from the start of trading while all other major divisions were unchanged to lower.

Just after the Eisenhower message was released, the aircrafts added to their gains while motors and steels perked up from the lows. Later the oils showed slight betterment.

Napanoch Native

present home at Brocton in western New York, disclosed his son was born in the Methodist parsonage at Napanoch on January 11, 1921. The attending physician was Dr. Walter Thayer, then superintendent of Napanoch prison.

The younger Shoup never attended school in this county, as his family moved shortly after his birth to Calicoon. In the 1930's, the Rev. Mr. Shoup served a parish at Trout Creek, Delaware county, and later was a pastor at the North Scriba Baptist Church.

Graduating from the Oswego High School in 1940, Shoup entered service in July, 1943, and first trained at Camp Davis, N. C. with the Coast Artillery. He went overseas with the infantry in November, 1944, meeting death two months later, on his 24th birthday, at Tillet, Belgium.

In addition to being posthumously awarded this nation's highest military honor, S/Sgt. Shoup also was awarded the British Military Medal from King George, and two medals from Belgium, the Order of Leopold with Palms, and the Belgian Croix de Guerre with Palms.

Citation of Award

The citation which accompanied the Medal of Honor discloses the circumstances surrounding his death. It reads:

"Sgt. Shoup was an assistant squad leader with Company I, 346th Infantry Regiment, near Tillet, Belgium, when his company attacked German troops on rising ground. Intense hostile machine-gun pinned down and threatened to annihilate the American unit in an exposed position where frozen ground made it impossible to dig in for protection. Heavy artillery fire from enemy batteries was added to the storm of destruction facing the Americans. Realizing that the machine-gun must be silenced at all costs, Sgt. Shoup, armed with an automatic rifle, crawled to within 75 yards of the enemy emplacement. He found that his fire was ineffective from this position, and, completely disregarding his own safety, stood up and grimly strode ahead into the murderous stream of bullets, firing his low-held weapon as he went. He was hit several times and finally knocked to the ground. But he struggled to his feet and staggered forward until close enough to hurl a grenade, wiping out the enemy machine gun nest with his dying action. By his heroism, fearless determination and supreme sacrifice, Sgt. Shoup eliminated a hostile weapon which threatened to destroy his company and turned a desperate situation into victory."

Lived Near Oswego

Because of Sgt. Shoup's family moves prior to his enlistment or induction, it is difficult to pinpoint any specific area as his "home." In his letter received this morning, the Rev. Mr. Shoup mentions that "as a son of a minister, we do not know where to claim his legal residence, except at the place of birth." He does point out that they were living near Oswego when his son entered service.

It is clear from newspaper clippings sent by the father that Oswego county has already claimed Sgt. Shoup as its first Medal of Honor soldier of World War 2.

An Army Transport Ship, formerly the Sprindle Eye, was renamed the Sgt. Curtis Shoup in his honor.

Presentation of the Medal of Honor was made to the Rev. Mr. Shoup at the Federated church, Stockton, by Brig. Gen. Ralph K. Robertson.

The investigation which led to the disclosure that Sgt. Shoup was a native Ulster county man began when Albert Melville, a member of Ulster Detachment, Marine Corps League, started to check a report that a Marine captain from Ulster county had been awarded the Medal of Honor.

Inquiry made of the State Adjutant General brought a reply that there were only two Ulster county residents listed among Medal of Honor recipients: Sgts. Dietz and Shoup. Sgt. Robert Dietz was well known here, but Shoup was unknown.

Born at Napanoch

Maj. Gen. Robert W. Hasbrouck, U.S.A., retired, checked records in Washington at the request of Director Shurter of the Veterans Service Agency, reporting back that Shoup's record listed his birthplace as Napanoch.

Hearing this information broadcast, the Rev. Milton Ryan wrote to Bob Browning, local newscaster, that he knew of a Rev. Curtis Shoup who had a parish at Trout Creek, Delaware county, and who had a son killed in the war.

A letter to Geroge F. White, editor of the Walton Reporter, ascertained that the Rev. Mr. Shoup served at Trout Creek, near Walton, in the 1930's, and was presently living at Brocton.

Additional, confirming information was received from several sources, and Shurter last week wrote to the Rev. Mr. Shoup at Brocton. His reply was received today.

French Quiz

Red China might send troops to help the Communist-led Vietminh fighting the hard-pressed foreign forces in Indochina. The Chinese Reds already are helping the Vietminh rebels with arms and supplies.

Dulles, on the other hand, wants to find out from the French what they intend to do about getting western European unity to working.

Their Feet Dragging

The French have been dragging their feet on the proposed European Defense Community (EDC), which would rearm West Germany to help defend west Europe. The French, who thought up the plan in the first place and then stalled after giving it a second look, fear a rearmed Germany.

In a radio address on his arrival yesterday, the U. S. secretary saluted the French leaders for inspiring the "constructive and imaginative" Schuman coal-steel plan and the EDC. But he pointedly added:

"Such creative thinking and planning has caught the imagination of the American people and we want to know more about your purposes and plans for the future so that we can take them into account in our planning."

Italy Will Continue

Dulles already has been told in Rome that Italy will continue to support the defense plan. After his visits here and in London, he will go to the other nations involved in the six-country army plan—West Germany, the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg.

Another thing bothering Dulles is the tendency by France and some other North Atlantic Pact nations to slow down on their military defense buildup. He was thoroughly briefed on this by such Americans as Ambassador William Draper, Jr., U. S. special representative in Europe, and Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, supreme allied commander in Europe.

Grass Fire Among Blazes Checked

Firemen answered three calls over the weekend; one for a blaze believed of incendiary origin, another for a dog coop fire, and one for an unseasonal grass fire.

A vacant barn on the Hasbrouck Park hill was damaged by a blaze, which authorities consider of incendiary origin. The call for this was at 7:11 p. m., Saturday. It was quenched with Indian pumps.

A call at 3:53 p. m., Saturday, was for the dog coop fire on the property of Fred Markle, Pettit avenue, and one at 12:14 p. m., Sunday was for a grass fire on the Ups-and-Downs, off Hudson street.

Two Persons Are Hurt Near Belleayre Center

Two Long Island residents were hurt in an automobile collision about 11:50 a. m. Sunday at the intersection of the Onteora Trail and the road to Belleayre Ski Center at Highmount, Cpl. Ray Dunn reported.

Injured were the driver of one car, Mrs. Gloria Rose Gardi, 28, of Woodside, and a passenger, Margaret Gianfortune of Astoria. Neither person required hospitalization, according to Dunn's report. The automobile in which they were riding was in collision with an automobile driven by Clark Hubert Wagner, 23, a U. S. Marine returning to his base in North Carolina, Dunn said. No arrest was made.

Russia or Jail Offer Rejected By Reds' Lawyer

New York, Feb. 2 (AP)—Thirteen convicted Communist leaders today were ordered a choice, either go to Russia or to jail, but defense counsel promptly rejected to go-to-Russia alternative.

The judge previously had asked four of the convicted Communists how they felt about such a choice.

Three of them said vehemently they had no intention of leaving the United States. The fourth indicated she didn't like the idea, either.

Shocked by Offer

Defense Attorney John T. McTernan said he was "very much disturbed and a little shocked" at the judge's questions about such an alternative.

Five of the defendants are Russian born. Two were born in Poland, one in Trinidad, one in Hungary. Four are native Americans.

Previously, the judge had announced he would not impose maximum prison sentences of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine on the 13.

Judge Dimock said he proposed sending the convicted leaders to Russia because it appears that sending them to prison won't "do any good."

"The defendants are all convinced that what they are doing is right," he said. "And they are going to continue to do it when they get out."

Effective Cure Seen

He said living in Russia for a while might be a more effective cure.

McTernan argued the court didn't have the power to send the defendants to Russia, and besides, Russia wouldn't admit them.

"So far as I know," he declared, "banishment has never been recognized in American law and is outlawed by the Constitution itself."

After the defense had turned thumbs down on the plan, the judge agreed, "all right, we'll have no more of it."

U. S. Attorney Myles J. Lane asked for the maximum penalty as the 13 were called into court for sentencing. The judge said the punishment would not be that heavy.

Selection of Jurors

counts of procuring, compulsory prostitution and living off the proceeds of prostitution.

He has pleaded innocent to all the counts, which could result in a prison term of 16 to 134 years and fines of more than $30,000 if he is convicted.

The youthful playboy is specifically charged with inducing 19-year-old model Patricia Ward to "live a life of prostitution" from September, 1951, to March, 1952. He also is charged with living "wholly or in part" on her earnings during this period.

Other counts in the indictment accuse him of forcing Patricia Thompson, 23, model, and Marguerite Cordova, 23, a hat check girl, to engage in prostitution. All three women are material witnesses.

Miss Ward, according to New York newspaper reports, broke the vice case after Jelke reportedly jilted her for 24-year-old Sylvia Eder, who, police say, was with the defendant at the time of his arrest last August.

Red-haired model Erica Steel, 28, alleged "madam" for the call girls, was named as a co-conspirator of Jelke. She has pleaded guilty to lesser charges of maintaining a public nuisance, including a house of ill fame.

In addition to the women named in the indictment, several more alleged call girls have been held as material witnesses in the widening inquiry. A number of other men also have been charged on various vice charges.

Platinum blonde Diane Harris, 21, is the latest drawn into the probe. Prosecution officials have indicated she will be called as a witness in the Jelke proceedings.

Miss Harris has been described as an acquaintance of ex-Egyptian King Farouk's "official procurer" and as the "golden girl of cafe society." She was apprehended on a material witness charge a week ago.

Jelke is free in $50,000 bail.

No Formal Commitments

London, Feb. 2 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill told an uneasy British Parliament today he made "no formal or informal commitments" with President Dwight Eisenhower during their meetings last month. The British leader also announced Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden will make a statement about the island of Formosa tomorrow—a statement that is expected to express Britain's deep concern at a reported change in American policy toward the island on which Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist Chinese army is based.

Aged Man Missing

The family of Frederick Reis, 82, of 331 East Chester street, who has been missing from home since 10 a. m., Jan. 28, said today no word has been received to indicate where he might be. He was described at about five feet, nine inches tall, thin, weighing about 105 pounds, with gray hair and a moustache. He wore a red corduroy cap, green trousers and a brown overcoat.

Wallace Official Says Store Idea 'Never Developed'

A spokesman for The Wallace Company, of Poughkeepsie, said today that interest of the company in establishing a department store in Kingston turned out to be "an idea that never developed."

The possibilities of establishing a store here were investigated some time ago, he said, but nothing ever came of it, and probably will not, he indicated.

Reports were renewed recently that the Poughkeepsie department store company was interested in building a store here.

Approximately 20 per cent of American farm production is due to the use of fertilizers.

Boy, 15, Is Named As Slayer of Youth

New York, Feb. 2 (AP)—A 15-year-old boy has been named by police as the bludgeon-slayer of another 15-year-old, Paul Peltz, whose battered body was found last Dec. 26 in a Bronx lot.

Police identified the alleged killer as Thomas Morgan, 15.

Morgan and 14-year-old Milton Thordsen were charged with juvenile delinquency yesterday.

Police gave this account:

Morgan admitted he lured Peltz to a vacant lot with a promise he would trade two pistols for two rifles Peltz possessed. Actually, Morgan did not have any gun, and faked the deal from the start to get Peltz's two weapons.

Morgan admitted bludgeoning Peltz with the butt of one of his own rifles, then crushing his head with a 25-pound rock as his victim tried to crawl away.

Morgan was not a friend of Peltz' but had met him through Thordsen and another boy. Detectives said Morgan left Peltz' dismantled rifles with Thordsen and pledged the latter to secrecy about the incident. The rifles were found in Thordsen's home.

Thordsen had been questioned several times in the investigation, but did not give information leading to Morgan until a new interrogation Saturday night.

Mediation Is Off In Delivers' Strike

New York, Feb. 2 (AP)—Mediation was suspended early today after a session of more than seven hours seeking to settle the strike of 600-odd men who deliver newspapers and magazines to newsdealers in suburban areas.

State Mediator Julius J. Manson said the issues had been clarified. He would not elaborate to newsmen, except to say that no further mediation meeting had been scheduled. Manson said, however, that he would keep in touch with both sides and be ready to participate if further meetings were desired.

Julius Kass, attorney for the Suburban Wholesalers Association, said after the mediation session that negotiations were deadlocked over the issue of a shorter work week for night workers only. He said the union, the Newspaper and Mail Deliverers Union (Ind.), had made some concessions on other demands.

Began Thursday

Union negotiators had no comment on the meeting.

The strike began Thursday midnight in a move to back up union demands for a cut in the work week from 40 to 37 hours, a pay increase of $2 a day, and an employer-financed pension program. The employers had offered $96 a week. Basic pay was $93.75 a week.

Affected by the strike are news dealers in New Jersey, Connecticut, Westchester county and Long Island. Deliveries within New York city are not involved in the strike.

The employer association represents 13 companies.

Body in Brook May Be Missing Woman

New Canaan, Conn., Feb. 2 (AP)—The body of a woman was found Saturday in a brook here and Police Chief Henry Keller expressed the belief it was that of Mrs. Ethel Miller Smith, 63, missing since April 30, 1952.

The 63-year-old Mrs. Smith, wife of Dr. Carl D. Smith, managing director of the credit and research foundation in New York, told her husband she was going for a walk just before her disappearance.

She was the object of a widespread search.

The body was found lying face downward in the brook at the bottom of a ravine in a thickly wooded section about a mile from the Smith home by Donald Halsted Jr., while he was exercising his dog.

Chief Keller said the victim apparently fell into the ravine, was injured and unable to make her way back to the highway. Mrs. Smith had moved to New Canaan from Bronxville, only three weeks before her disappearance.

Dr. Smith was reported en route to Florida.

Cops Wink at ABC Violations, Report

Albany, Feb. 2 (AP)—The State Liquor Authority says most local police officials are winking at liquor law violations and should be forced by the Legislature to prosecute offenders.

The SLA also told Gov. Dewey and the Legislature last night that the state's Alcoholic Beverage Control (ABC) law was not armed to clamp down on bootleggers and speakeasy operators. It urged enactment of a stiff measure to help federal agents control illicit liquor enterprises.

In its 19th annual report, the liquor-control agency said police in each of 27 of the state's 62 counties had reported no violations of the ABC law in 1952, and in 24 counties, had reported less than 10.

"This absence of police action and the indicated lack of understanding of areas of enforcement responsibility in this 20th year of repeal are portentous," the SLA said. "They have existed continuously since repeal * * *, and have developed a stubborn immunity to our efforts to combat them."

Sees Duty Local One

The agency admitted that the present law did not state clearly who should crack down on liquor-law violations. But it said it had "continued to align its operations with the premise that the field work of ABC enforcement is by legislative choice the duty of local law enforcement agencies."

District attorneys, sheriffs, chiefs of police and police commissioners were ordered by Gov. Herbert H. Lehman in 1935 to enforce the liquor law, the SLA said. But it contended the job never had been done adequately, and was getting worse all the time.

Regarding bootlegging, the liquor authority said that "the absence of teeth in our law has resulted in the almost complete abandonment of prosecution" in state courts of offenders.

Boy, 15, Is Named As Slayer of Youth

New York, Feb. 2 (AP)—A 15-year-old boy has been named by police as the bludgeon-slayer of another 15-year-old, Paul Peltz, whose battered body was found last Dec. 26 in a Bronx lot.

Police identified the alleged killer as Thomas Morgan, 15.

Morgan and 14-year-old Milton Thordsen were charged with juvenile delinquency yesterday.

Police gave this account:

Morgan admitted he lured Peltz to a vacant lot with a promise he would trade two pistols for two rifles Peltz possessed. Actually, Morgan did not have any gun, and faked the deal from the start to get Peltz's two weapons.

Morgan admitted bludgeoning Peltz with the butt of one of his own rifles, then crushing his head with a 25-pound rock as his victim tried to crawl away.

Morgan was not a friend of Peltz' but had met him through Thordsen and another boy. Detectives said Morgan left Peltz' dismantled rifles with Thordsen and pledged the latter to secrecy about the incident. The rifles were found in Thordsen's home.

Thordsen had been questioned several times in the investigation, but did not give information leading to Morgan until a new interrogation Saturday night.

Mediation Is Off In Delivers' Strike

New York, Feb. 2 (AP)—Mediation was suspended early today after a session of more than seven hours seeking to settle the strike of 600-odd men who deliver newspapers and magazines to newsdealers in suburban areas.

State Mediator Julius J. Manson said the issues had been clarified. He would not elaborate to newsmen, except to say that no further mediation meeting had been scheduled. Manson said, however, that he would keep in touch with both sides and be ready to participate if further meetings were desired.

Julius Kass, attorney for the Suburban Wholesalers Association, said after the mediation session that negotiations were deadlocked over the issue of a shorter work week for night workers only. He said the union, the Newspaper and Mail Deliverers Union (Ind.), had made some concessions on other demands.

Began Thursday

Union negotiators had no comment on the meeting.

The strike began Thursday midnight in a move to back up union demands for a cut in the work week from 40 to 37 hours, a pay increase of $2 a day, and an employer-financed pension program. The employers had offered $96 a week. Basic pay was $93.75 a week.

Affected by the strike are news dealers in New Jersey, Connecticut, Westchester county and Long Island. Deliveries within New York city are not involved in the strike.

The employer association represents 13 companies.

Body in Brook May Be Missing Woman

New Canaan, Conn., Feb. 2 (AP)—The body of a woman was found Saturday in a brook here and Police Chief Henry Keller expressed the belief it was that of Mrs. Ethel Miller Smith, 63, missing since April 30, 1952.

The 63-year-old Mrs. Smith, wife of Dr. Carl D. Smith, managing director of the credit and research foundation in New York, told her husband she was going for a walk just before her disappearance.

She was the object of a widespread search.

The body was found lying face downward in the brook at the bottom of a ravine in a thickly wooded section about a mile from the Smith home by Donald Halsted Jr., while he was exercising his dog.

Chief Keller said the victim apparently fell into the ravine, was injured and unable to make her way back to the highway. Mrs. Smith had moved to New Canaan from Bronxville, only three weeks before her disappearance.

Dr. Smith was reported en route to Florida.

Cops Wink at ABC Violations, Report

Albany, Feb. 2 (AP)—The State Liquor Authority says most local police officials are winking at liquor law violations and should be forced by the Legislature to prosecute offenders.

The SLA also told Gov. Dewey and the Legislature last night that the state's Alcoholic Beverage Control (ABC) law was not armed to clamp down on bootleggers and speakeasy operators. It urged enactment of a stiff measure to help federal agents control illicit liquor enterprises.

In its 19th annual report, the liquor-control agency said police in each of 27 of the state's 62 counties had reported no violations of the ABC law in 1952, and in 24 counties, had reported less than 10.

"This absence of police action and the indicated lack of understanding of areas of enforcement responsibility in this 20th year of repeal are portentous," the SLA said. "They have existed continuously since repeal * * *, and have developed a stubborn immunity to our efforts to combat them."

Sees Duty Local One

The agency admitted that the present law did not state clearly who should crack down on liquor-law violations. But it said it had "continued to align its operations with the premise that the field work of ABC enforcement is by legislative choice the duty of local law enforcement agencies."

District attorneys, sheriffs, chiefs of police and police commissioners were ordered by Gov. Herbert H. Lehman in 1935 to enforce the liquor law, the SLA said. But it contended the job never had been done adequately, and was getting worse all the time.

Regarding bootlegging, the liquor authority said that "the absence of teeth in our law has resulted in the almost complete abandonment of prosecution" in state courts of offenders.

'53 Car Tags Must Be Shown Tuesday

Motorists have until midnight tonight to replace their 1952 passenger car licenses with the new 1953 tags. The old plate must be removed from the front of the car since only one plate will be used during 1953.

Ordinarily the 1952 plates would have expired Saturday at midnight but coming at a weekend the Jan. 31 expiration date was continued until midnight today.

In Ulster county, new plates were issued for passenger cars at an unusually good pace during the last few days and few remain to be issued before the deadline tonight.

FREE WORLD'S WEAKNESS

Arnold Toynbee, British historian who ranks among the world's great in his field, had a very pertinent thing to say the other day to all men living in the free world. And it tied in with something President Eisenhower said in his inaugural address.

On a CBS television interview, Toynbee was discussing the dangers to western civilization. He didn't stress the obvious external threat—Russia. He emphasized the free world's internal weaknesses. These, he said, are the real peril.

What he meant was exactly what Mr. Eisenhower meant when he said on January 20 that the Communists "feed on the hunger of others."

It is the Reds' great hope that free men will fail to deal a full blow at poverty and its accompanying social ills; that they will not find among themselves the kind of unity they need to meet these difficulties at political and economic levels; and that they will fail to approach these problems in a way that will offer promise to Asiatics and Africans as well as westerners.

In other words, according to Toynbee, social injustice, disunity and the lack of understanding between western peoples and the African-Asiatic groups are the vulnerable spots in our armor. Here the Communists will probe for their own new ground, advancing as disease advances in a weakened part of the body.

Though we do not plan to do so, we of the West might perfectly balance Russian military power. And yet we still would not be free of the Red menace. For the Communist idea, as the President and Toynbee have pointed out, fattens on our failures.

Since the goals of justice, unity and understanding among all peoples seem far from attainment, isn't Toynbee's outlook basically a dark one?

He doesn't think so, and this is the real kernel of what he had to say. He believes that the very reverse of what the Russians hope for will happen.

He believes that the magnitude of the external Communist threat—military, political, economic, ideological — will prod and goad the free world into substantially curing the weaknesses the Reds feed upon. He believes this has already begun to take place.

For the Communists this would be the complete irony, to press their cause so strongly as to arouse the free world to progress which in the end will rob that cause of its strength.

Yet that is the prospect as Toynbee sees it. Plainly communism has no great inner force of its own. Its pull upon men is relative to their distress. If western men do the great things they are now embarked upon, this vaunted magnet of communism will one day no longer be able to attract a pin.

FRIENDSHIP OF INDIA

Since it gained its independence from Britain, India has steadily been growing in world influence and importance. Wooed by both the West and the East, India has managed to maintain a policy of neutrality although she has frequently supported the aims of the democracies with which she is more or less spiritually akin.

But India is cooling toward the United States. Our recent support of Pakistan and the planned visit of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles to the sub-continent has elicted a bitter reaction in India where it is feared that American support of Pakistan is given with an ulterior motive.

These rifts must be mended. The first step in doing so will be to send an able and experienced man to India as ambassador. President Eisenhower's first choice for the post, Val Peterson of Nebraska, was blocked by what is called senatorial courtesy. A wise second choice is important. We should not let India turn away from us for lack of intelligent and friendly attention.

Every individual has a place to fill in the world, Hawthorne once said. But some seem to take an awfully long time getting around to find it.

TARIFF TROUBLES

When foreign nations, particularly Great Britain, design to achieve an alteration in American policy, they often soften up American public opinion, with an emotional, even a tear-jerking slogan. The result is that our emotions, so close to the surface usually, are stirred actively if not deeply, and we give the blighters a billion or two, just to show that we are good-natured.

There are many ways of giving subsidies to foreign countries and one of them is to lower the tariff sufficiently to make our markets more favorable to foreign than to American goods. The lowering of the tariff could, under conditions, be as good as a direct credit gift. Therefore, on this subject, we need to be cautious.

The Europeans wish the United States to lower the tariff with a view to closing the dollar gap. But these European countries have been waging a battle against American manufacturers since history began on this continent. It was one of the causes of the American Revolution, probably the principal cause. Therefore, we need to get away from the high propagandistic phrase, "dollar gap," and discuss tariffs. The British objected to them in the Administration of William McKinley as they do in the Administration of Dwight D. Eisenhower.

A very small part of our imports, not more than 22 per cent, are dutiable goods of special interest to Europeans. More than half of the imports that enter this country are free of duty.

In 1951 — the last full statistical year — imports from the Sterling Area amounted to $2,911,000,000; our exports to this same area amounted to $3,167,000,000, leaving a "dollar gap" of $256,000,000. Under the neo-mercantilism which the British now say that they wish to practice, that $256,000,000 should be equated in some manner, so that either it is wiped out or turned against us. Certainly, the elimination of this $256,000,000 unfavorable balance will not solve Great Britain's problems.

Winston Churchill, the most glorious phrasemaker of the age, has hoisted this one: "Trade Not Aid." It is a beauty, but altogether without the slightest relationship to reality. As long as the British keep their American purchases down, by their own neo-mercantilism, they cannot expect us to whoop up our purchases from them. Actually, we are constantly increasing our purchases abroad, particularly from NATO countries.

What some Europeans would really prefer is that the United States should permit increases from "behind the Iron Curtain," thus creating American dollar reserves which the satellites could use for purchases in Great Britain, France, Holland, etc.

Let me indicate such a three-way exchange: The United States would import cheap, substandard shoes from Czechoslovakia, thus establishing American dollar reserves for Czechoslovakia; the Czechs could then go to London to buy machine tools, using the American dollar reserves for the purpose. Thus, three wonderful objectives would be accomplished: 1. The Czechs would be able to dump cheap, substandard, slave-made shoes in the United States; 2. The British would be able to sell machine tools to the Russians via Czechoslovakia; 3. The British dollar gap would have some more dollars.

What does the United State get out of all this? Don't be silly! Trade not aid!

Another gimmick that is being proposed is called "convertibility." Since time immemorial, one kind of money has been convertible into another by an exchange rate. Actually today, while you read this, anyone in the world who has an American dollar can convert it into sterling. The vice-versa is not so. Sterling is blocked by the British government. To convert sterling into dollars is forbidden except by permit.

Thus, under-the-table conversions are in existence, as a result of exchange restrictions and money controls. The British block sterling and ration dollars and produce shortages British sterling is regarded by many experts as too high in relationship to the dollar and artificially kept so. What they would like the United States to do is to devalue the American dollar to bring it in line with the British pound. This they call "convertibility."

Actually, this would produce inflation in the United States. It would reduce the American dollar, like the pound sterling, to fiat money. Today, the American dollar can buy goods or gold in the international market; British sterling cannot. They would like to bring the dollar down to the value of the pound. It is a dangerous business —for the United States.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

BED REST FOR THE COMMON COUGH

Now that physicans are cutting down on the amount of bed rest for heart disease and advising armchair rest with bathroom privileges, some may have the idea that this is to make more hospital beds available for those acutely ill. Though it may make more beds available, the real purpose is that there can really be too much bed rest, which slows up the circulation, interferes with digestion, and often causes constipation.

Because less bed rest is advised in serious ailments and following operation, many of us think that in the matter of the common cold no bed rest is needed or advisable. However, the oldtime advice to get bed rest immediately when attacked by a cold is still best, as it gives the natural forces protecting the body a chance to do their best work, if the strength of the body is not being used for other purposes. In other words, when treatment is prolonged, more than a few days, too much bed rest is not advisable.

In the Journal of the American Medical Association in answer to the question of the need of bed rest and the use of antibiotics (disease fighters) in treatment of the common cough, we read:

"Since there is no effective method of preventing the common cold, the same is equally true of the common cough; however, there are a number of general measures useful in treatment of cough. The value of bed rest early in the course of the common cold and the cough, present or following it, is shown by the fact that bed rest causes the cough to subside and sometimes disappear completely.

"The air should be kept moist and moderately warm. Warm moist air soothes the impulse to cough, whereas hot dry air may provoke and prolong the cough."

As stated before, when there is mucus in back of nose and in the throat, the use of a medicine to "loosen up" this mucus is the proper treatment, but when there is little or no mucus, the cough just of a hacking nature, a drug to quiet or prevent cough is advisable. For this reason the advice is to use these quieting drugs only if absolutely necessary to maintain the patient's strength.

Opiates and atropine actually increase the "stickiness," thereby adding to the difficulty of loosening up and getting rid of the mucus. The tiny little hairs lining the throat gradually move mucus outward if no quieting drug is used.

What about bed rest for the common cough? It is known that when lying down, throat at horizontal position, the tiny hairs (cilia) in the throat move the mucus forward and outward twice as fast as when the patient is sitting up (in vertical position). For this reason, the bed rest is advisable in the treatment of the common cough.

When the cough is unusually severe, the use of the germ killing drugs (the antibiotics), penicillin and others, may be used effectively.

'Tis a Consummation Devoutly to Be Wish'd

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington, (NEA) — Along with its announcement that a new series of atomic weapon tests will be made in Nevada in March, the Atomic Energy Commission has disclosed that in these tests existing safety standards are more than adequate to oversome any radiation danger to the rest of the U. S.

This is perhaps the most reassuring news that AEC could make at this time to quiet fears of lasting injury to human, animal and plant life from what is known as "fall-out."

This is the name given by atomic scientists to the falling back to earth of radioactive particles in the cloud that rises from an atomic explosion.

Twenty "nuclear devices or weapons," as they are called, have been exploded in the last two years at the 640-square-mile proving ground 65 miles nowthwest of Las Vegas, Nev. Detailed scientific measurements have been made after each of these tests, all over the United States.

In fact, a radiation monitoring system of 121 stations has now been established in this country to insure the safety of the American people not only from U. S. test weapons but also from any enemy A-bombs that might be dropped in a surprise attack.

It is generally assumed that the Nevada explosions of next March will be the first tests of the new atomic artillery shells, though there has been no official announcement to this effect. Further preliminary tests for the hydrogen bombs or its components are also possible.

18,000 Troops in Test

Early in December the AEC announced contracts for the construction of over a million dollars' worth of "expendable structures" at the Nevada proving ground. Work on these structures is now being rushed, and it is assumed that some of them will be ready for the March tests, in which 18,000 U. S. troops will be maneuvered.

All these tests serve to familiarize the armed services, civil defense workers and the entire U. S. civilian population with saftey precautions to be observed against atomic weapons. With further tests to be scheduled later, AEC is anxious to have this information spread as widely as possible.

The effects of the first 20 explosions in Nevada are summed up by the commission in this way:

One. No person has been injured by blast waves or exposed to a harmful amount of radiation from fall-out. This radiation has been far below the level which would cause any detectable effect on the children of exposed people.

Data collected from Japan indicate only an "insignificant increase" of detectable changes in the children of A-bomb victims exposed to radiation hundreds or thousands of times greater than from fall-out.

Two. There has been no accumulation of hazardous radioactivity in the soil. The uptake of radioactivity by plants has not created any dangers of radioactivity food supplies.

No Impairment in Cattle

Three. About 100 head of a herd of 500 cattle grazing in the test area sustained skin lesions in one of the 1952 tests. This caused some hair discoloration, but neither the health nor the reproductive ability of the cattle was impaired.

Four. For the 20 explosions, a total of 453 claims were filed for direct blast damage in Las Vegas and other nearby communities. This damage consisted of cracked plaster or stucco and broken windows. Three hundred and eighty-one of these claims were allowed, and settlements of $42,929 have been paid.

Five. After the original Alamogordo, N. M., explosion, water containing fall-out particles was used in the manufacture of strawboard. This paper was later used to package photographic film, and the film was fogged because of its great sensitivity. Subsequent tests have proved that up to 84 per cent of this radioactivity can be removed in the rapid sand filters normally used in city water supply systems.

This safety record in connection with the Nevada tests has been achieved largely by pre-test precautions. Ample warnings are given before each test. Troops and AEC workers in the blast area are required to face away from the blast at the instant of explosion. Civil Aeronautics Authority keeps all aircraft out of the test area. If wind and weather conditions are such that radiation or fall-out might be dangerous, the test is postponed.

The AEC system of monitoring all atomic tests is to be continued and strengthened. Public health officials are to be kept advised on the levels of radioactivity from fall-out of explosion. Says the commission: "There is now no reason for alarm, since the radioactivity released by fall-out has proved not to be hazardous."

Peter Minuit Tried for Extravagance

Peter Minuit (1580-1638), director general of New Netherlands, who bought the island of Manhattan from Indian sachems for $24 in 1626, was tried by the Chamber of the West India Company in Amsterdam, Holland, and fired for inefficiency and extravagance. Today on the 300th anniversary of the incorporation of the City of New York, Manhattan Island's assessed value is $8,380,000,000.

Cold War Initiative Is Regarded as Being in Hands of U. S. Administration

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Feb. 2—The first step to break the stalemate in Korea has been taken. The initiative in the "cold war" is passing from Moscow to Washington.

Removal of the naval blockade imposed alone by the United States against Chinese Nationalists on Formosa in 1950 means a clearing of the air in the Far East.

No longer will American naval forces prevent the Chinese Nationalists from sending troops out of Formosa to the mainland of China and no longer will the Chinese Communists become involved in breaking by air or sea any American blockade if the Communists wish to land on Formosa.

This means that the Communist high command must immediately order not only more troops but many air force units to the Chinese mainland bases nearest to Formosa. This means taking them hundreds of miles away from the Korean theatre of operations. This means lessening the forces and the military supplies available to fight the United Nations troops in Korea and hence it could mean such a change in the situation as to compel the Chinese Communists to resume truce talks and to accept the allied viewpoint on armistice terms.

The new move which apparently was among the suggestions received by General Eisenhower when he conferred recently with Admiral Radford, commander in chief of the Pacific fleet and with General MacArthur and others has far more implications than merely giving a new aspect to the Korean war itself. It involves a rebuilding of relationships with Europe, too. John Foster Dulles, secretary of state, timed his visit to London and Paris to enable him to be there coincidentally to explain the move when announced from Washington.

For the strange thing about the naval blockade against the Nationalists on Formosa was that President Truman imposed it as a unilateral act in June 1950. Britain, which had recognized Red China, could not at that time formally approve a military operation against the Peiping government. While Britain and France, for example, as members of the United Nations went along with the resistance to aggression in Korea they were in no way connected with the blockade order against Formosa and their naval ships have taken no part since in that operation even though warships of these European allies have been working constantly as a part of the American fleet along the coast of Korea.

The ostensible purpose of the blockade originally was to "neutralize" Formosa which has come to be regarded in recent years as within the "defense perimeter" of the United States in case of war since to America would fall the primary duty—in behalf of the UN —of protecting the Philippines, Japan, Australia and New Zeland. Military strategists say that along with the island of Okinawa, Formosa must remain in possession of authorities friendly to the free world. That was the essence of the MacArthur recommendation in his speech to the veterans of foreign wars which prior to the Korean outbreak aroused the wrath of President Truman and caused him to order the speech suppressed though, of course, it did become public anyway.

To remove restrictions, therefore, on the Chinese Nationalists and to permit them to raid the coast of Communist China is in a sense a belated reprisal against the intervention of the Communist Chinese troops in the Korean war but it never would have been sanctioned unless President Eisenhower had been convinced by Admiral Radford and General Chase, head of the American military mission on Formosa, that the Nationalists could defend Formosa even though it might be some time before the Nationalist troops themselves could mount an attack on the mainland of China.

For all practical purposes the move doesn't mean any large-scale military operations in and around Formosa in the immediate future but it certainly starts to clear up the Far Eastern situation.

Notice has been served moreover on Moscow that the Eisenhower administration, continuing to recognize the government of Chiang Kai-Shek on Formosa as the legitimate government of China, may decide to honor requests for assistance which such a government may make in accordance with international custom. Thus the government of Greece for example sought and obtained in 1947 American aid in driving Communists out of her sovereign territory. Assistance to a recognized government is, under international law, not considered intervention in the internal affairs of such a country.

These changes from the Truman-Acheson policy of stagnation to an affirmative policy of action clearly signify that Russia will have to do the guessing from now on—and that pressure of one kind or another to compel Moscow to ease world tension will be unremitting and this doesn't involve any attacks on Russia proper or hostilities such as would be involved in another world war. It certainly does not mean any American forces will be sent to China proper.

Congress will go along with the new policies enthusiastically. Indeed an inquiry to determine just why President Truman stopped General MacArthur from destroying the bridges across the Yalu river, thus permitting the Chinese armies in November, 1950, to pour across into Korea now will be urged. General MacArthur revealed that piece of news for the first time over the weekend and it is bound to cause some committee of Congress to ask to look at the records to find out why the State Department —which undoubtedly ordered the action countermanded —gave the Communist Chinese their present military advantage in Korea at a terrific cost of American casualties.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

I would like to lend you the $500 because I know how painful your emergency is but these days a fellow must earn at least $1,000 and perhaps as much as $1,500 to clear $500 for himself after taxes. You can see what that means in our case. I know as well as you do that a broken hip is a terribly expensive proposition in an old lady and I devoutly hope that our inventive genius will come up with something on the order of a harness or derrick that will reduce the incidence of broken hip in elderly mothers-in-law, getting in and/or out of bathtubs.

Statistics show that in the fiscal year 1950-51, broken hips of mothers-in-law rose 12.7 per cent above fiscal 1949-1950 and that the cost of hospital rooms, nurses' salaries, surgical care, including those pins and the process of putting them in and taking them out, taxis to and from hospital for members of the family, flowers, X-rays and incidentals increased 24.8 per cent.

Now, in your position, working for a shaky company and facing the fact of your unfortunate lack of competence to progress further in your line of business, we have to face the probability that you would never be able to pay me back the $500. Knowing you as I do, I would count on you not to put aside your dimes and quarters in a cookie jar and to pay me off $5 or $10 at a time. People used to do that but they just don't do it any more and moreover they have an idea that a fellow with an earning capacity relatively larger than their own has plently of money and doesn't miss $500 or $1,000. I don't blame you, because an income of $25,000 a year sounds like a million, for not realizing that the income tax bite gets deeper as the income mounts higher.

I will tell you what, though.

I don't mind lending or giving you the $500 and hope it would help you in your trouble, I know what worry you are suffering and your poor wife is such a wonderful girl and so loyal and frugal that I would like to save her a little sleeplessness if I can. So, I will send you the $500 but I want you to sign a note for it with interest at, say, one per cent so that the deal will be strictly businesslike. Let us make it a three-year note so that I can get it off the books in a reasonable time.

At the end of three years I will write you a formal demand for the $500, plus interest and you can write me a rather insulting letter telling me that you have no assets, that your salary is barely enough to cover your current needs, that your insurance is all borrowed up and that, anyway, I ought to be ashamed to demand my money, a man of my income and wealth. Lay it on a little because I want to be able to show the Internal Revenue that I made a conscientious effort to collect a "bad" debt but failed for no want of sincere harassment.

Now this will put you into the record as a penny ante Elliott Roosevelt, but people will realize that we had to do this in order to redress a disadvantage put upon us by the income tax laws, and will make allowances. They will say I was a nice guy to get up the $500, they will understand that you honestly couldn't carry the load, they will see that it was a gift of friendship and they will applaud both of us for finding a way to duck the payment of a 100 per cent or even a 200 per cent penalty in income taxes on an act of generosity to an old friend.

If I wanted to give $500 to the

FREE WORLD'S WEAKNESS

Arnold Toynbee, British historian who ranks among the world's great in his field, had a very pertinent thing to say the other day to all men living in the free world. And it tied in with something President Eisenhower said in his inaugural address.

On a CBS television interview, Toynbee was discussing the dangers to western civilization. He didn't stress the obvious external threat—Russia. He emphasized the free world's internal weaknesses. These, he said, are the real peril.

What he meant was exactly what Mr. Eisenhower meant when he said on January 20 that the Communists "feed on the hunger of others."

It is the Reds' great hope that free men will fail to deal a full blow at poverty and its accompanying social ills; that they will not find among themselves the kind of unity they need to meet these difficulties at political and economic levels; and that they will fail to approach these problems in a way that will offer promise to Asiatics and Africans as well as westerners.

In other words, according to Toynbee, social injustice, disunity and the lack of understanding between western peoples and the African-Asiatic groups are the vulnerable spots in our armor. Here the Communists will probe for their own new ground, advancing as disease advances in a weakened part of the body.

Though we do not plan to do so, we of the West might perfectly balance Russian military power. And yet we still would not be free of the Red menace. For the Communist idea, as the President and Toynbee have pointed out, fattens on our failures.

Since the goals of justice, unity and understanding among all peoples seem far from attainment, isn't Toynbee's outlook basically a dark one?

He doesn't think so, and this is the real kernel of what he had to say. He believes that the very reverse of what the Russians hope for will happen.

He believes that the magnitude of the external Communist threat—military, political, economic, ideological — will prod and goad the free world into substantially curing the weaknesses the Reds feed upon. He believes this has already begun to take place.

For the Communists this would be the complete irony, to press their cause so strongly as to arouse the free world to progress which in the end will rob that cause of its strength.

Yet that is the prospect as Toynbee sees it. Plainly communism has no great inner force of its own. Its pull upon men is relative to their distress. If western men do the great things they are now embarked upon, this vaunted magnet of communism will one day no longer be able to attract a pin.

FRIENDSHIP OF INDIA

Since it gained its independence from Britain, India has steadily been growing in world influence and importance. Wooed by both the West and the East, India has managed to maintain a policy of neutrality although she has frequently supported the aims of the democracies with which she is more or less spiritually akin.

But India is cooling toward the United States. Our recent support of Pakistan and the planned visit of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles to the sub-continent has elicted a bitter reaction in India where it is feared that American support of Pakistan is given with an ulterior motive.

These rifts must be mended. The first step in doing so will be to send an able and experienced man to India as ambassador. President Eisenhower's first choice for the post, Val Peterson of Nebraska, was blocked by what is called senatorial courtesy. A wise second choice is important. We should not let India turn away from us for lack of intelligent and friendly attention.

Every individual has a place to fill in the world, Hawthorne once said. But some seem to take an awfully long time getting around to find it.

TARIFF TROUBLES

When foreign nations, particularly Great Britain, design to achieve an alteration in American policy, they often soften up American public opinion, with an emotional, even a tear-jerking slogan. The result is that our emotions, so close to the surface usually, are stirred actively if not deeply, and we give the blighters a billion or two, just to show that we are good-natured.

There are many ways of giving subsidies to foreign countries and one of them is to lower the tariff sufficiently to make our markets more favorable to foreign than to American goods. The lowering of the tariff could, under conditions, be as good as a direct credit gift. Therefore, on this subject, we need to be cautious.

The Europeans wish the United States to lower the tariff with a view to closing the dollar gap. But these European countries have been waging a battle against American manufacturers since history began on this continent. It was one of the causes of the American Revolution, probably the principal cause. Therefore, we need to get away from the high propagandistic phrase, "dollar gap," and discuss tariffs. The British objected to them in the Administration of William McKinley as they do in the Administration of Dwight D. Eisenhower.

A very small part of our imports, not more than 22 per cent, are dutiable goods of special interest to Europeans. More than half of the imports that enter this country are free of duty.

In 1951 — the last full statistical year — imports from the Sterling Area amounted to $2,911,000,000; our exports to this same area amounted to $3,167,000,000, leaving a "dollar gap" of $256,000,000. Under the neo-mercantilism which the British now say that they wish to practice, that $256,000,000 should be equated in some manner, so that either it is wiped out or turned against us. Certainly, the elimination of this $256,000,000 unfavorable balance will not solve Great Britain's problems.

Winston Churchill, the most glorious phrasemaker of the age, has hoisted this one: "Trade Not Aid." It is a beauty, but altogether without the slightest relationship to reality. As long as the British keep their American purchases down, by their own neo-mercantilism, they cannot expect us to whoop up our purchases from them. Actually, we are constantly increasing our purchases abroad, particularly from NATO countries.

What some Europeans would really prefer is that the United States should permit increases from "behind the Iron Curtain," thus creating American dollar reserves which the satellites could use for purchases in Great Britain, France, Holland, etc.

Let me indicate such a three-way exchange: The United States would import cheap, substandard shoes from Czechoslovakia, thus establishing American dollar reserves for Czechoslovakia; the Czechs could then go to London to buy machine tools, using the American dollar reserves for the purpose. Thus, three wonderful objectives would be accomplished: 1. The Czechs would be able to dump cheap, substandard, slave-made shoes in the United States; 2. The British would be able to sell machine tools to the Russians via Czechoslovakia; 3. The British dollar gap would have some more dollars.

What does the United State get out of all this? Don't be silly! Trade not aid!

Another gimmick that is being proposed is called "convertibility." Since time immemorial, one kind of money has been convertible into another by an exchange rate. Actually today, while you read this, anyone in the world who has an American dollar can convert it into sterling. The vice-versa is not so. Sterling is blocked by the British government. To convert sterling into dollars is forbidden except by permit.

Thus, under-the-table conversions are in existence, as a result of exchange restrictions and money controls. The British block sterling and ration dollars and produce shortages British sterling is regarded by many experts as too high in relationship to the dollar and artificially kept so. What they would like the United States to do is to devalue the American dollar to bring it in line with the British pound. This they call "convertibility."

Actually, this would produce inflation in the United States. It would reduce the American dollar, like the pound sterling, to fiat money. Today, the American dollar can buy goods or gold in the international market; British sterling cannot. They would like to bring the dollar down to the value of the pound. It is a dangerous business —for the United States.

That Body of Yours

BED REST FOR THE COMMON COUGH

Now that physicans are cutting down on the amount of bed rest for heart disease and advising armchair rest with bathroom privileges, some may have the idea that this is to make more hospital beds available for those acutely ill. Though it may make more beds available, the real purpose is that there can really be too much bed rest, which slows up the circulation, interferes with digestion, and often causes constipation.

Because less bed rest is advised in serious ailments and following operation, many of us think that in the matter of the common cold no bed rest is needed or advisable. However, the oldtime advice to get bed rest immediately when attacked by a cold is still best, as it gives the natural forces protecting the body a chance to do their best work, if the strength of the body is not being used for other purposes. In other words, when treatment is prolonged, more than a few days, too much bed rest is not advisable.

In the Journal of the American Medical Association in answer to the question of the need of bed rest and the use of antibiotics (disease fighters) in treatment of the common cough, we read:

"Since there is no effective method of preventing the common cold, the same is equally true of the common cough; however, there are a number of general measures useful in treatment of cough. The value of bed rest early in the course of the common cold and the cough, present or following it, is shown by the fact that bed rest causes the cough to subside and sometimes disappear completely.

"The air should be kept moist and moderately warm. Warm moist air soothes the impulse to cough, whereas hot dry air may provoke and prolong the cough."

As stated before, when there is mucus in back of nose and in the throat, the use of a medicine to "loosen up" this mucus is the proper treatment, but when there is little or no mucus, the cough just of a hacking nature, a drug to quiet or prevent cough is advisable. For this reason the advice is to use these quieting drugs only if absolutely necessary to maintain the patient's strength.

Opiates and atropine actually increase the "stickiness," thereby adding to the difficulty of loosening up and getting rid of the mucus. The tiny little hairs lining the throat gradually move mucus outward if no quieting drug is used.

What about bed rest for the common cough? It is known that when lying down, throat at horizontal position, the tiny hairs (cilia) in the throat move the mucus forward and outward twice as fast as when the patient is sitting up (in vertical position). For this reason, the bed rest is advisable in the treatment of the common cough.

When the cough is unusually severe, the use of the germ killing drugs (the antibiotics), penicillin and others, may be used effectively.

'Tis a Consummation Devoutly to Be Wish'd

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington, (NEA) — Along with its announcement that a new series of atomic weapon tests will be made in Nevada in March, the Atomic Energy Commission has disclosed that in these tests existinf safety standards are more than adequate to oversome any radiation danger to the rest of the U. S.

This is perhaps the most reassuring news that AEC could make at this time to quiet fears of lasting injury to human, animal and plant life from what is known as "fall-out."

This is the name given by atomic scientists to the falling back to earth of radioactive particles in the cloud that rises from an atomic explosion.

Twenty "nuclear devices or weapons," as they are called, have been exploded in the last two years at the 640-square-mile proving ground 65 miles nowthwest of Las Vegas, Nev. Detailed scientific measurements have been made after each of these tests, all over the United States.

In fact, a radiation monitoring system of 121 stations has now been established in this country to insure the safety of the American people not only from U. S. test weapons but also from any enemy A-bombs that might be dropped in a surprise attack.

It is generally assumed that the Nevada explosions of next March will be the first tests of the new atomic artillery shells, though there has been no official announcement to this effect. Further preliminary tests for the hydrogen bombs or its components are also possible.

18,000 Troops in Test

Early in December the AEC announced contracts for the construction of over a million dollars' worth of "expendable structures" at the Nevada proving ground. Work on these structures is now being rushed, and it is assumed that some of them will be ready for the March tests, in which 18,000 U. S. troops will be maneuvered.

All these tests serve to familiarize the armed services, civil defense workers and the entire U. S. civilian population with saftey precautions to be observed against atomic weapons. With further tests to be scheduled later, AEC is anxious to have this information spread as widely as possible.

The effects of the first 20 explosions in Nevada are summed up by the commission in this way:

One. No person has been injured by blast waves or exposed to a harmful amount of radiation from fall-out. This radiation has been far below the level which would cause any detectable effect on the children of exposed people.

Data collected from Japan indicate only an "insignificant increase" of detectable changes in the children of A-bomb victims exposed to radiation hundreds or thousands of times greater than from fall-out.

Two. There has been no accumulation of hazardous radioactivity in the soil. The uptake of radioactivity by plants has not created any dangers of radioactivity food supplies.

No Impairment in Cattle

Three. About 100 head of a herd of 500 cattle grazing in the test area sustained skin lesions in one of the 1952 tests. This caused some hair discoloration, but neither the health nor the reproductive ability of the cattle was impaired.

Four. For the 20 explosions, a total of 453 claims were filed for direct blast damage in Las Vegas and other nearby communities. This damage consisted of cracked plaster or stucco and broken windows. Three hundred and eighty-one of these claims were allowed, and settlements of $42,929 have been paid.

Five. After the original Alamogordo, N. M., explosion, water containing fall-out particles was used in the manufacture of strawboard. This paper was later used to package photographic film, and the film was fogged because of its great sensitivity. Subsequent tests have proved that up to 84 per cent of this radioactivity can be removed in the rapid sand filters normally used in city water supply systems.

This safety record in connection with the Nevada tests has been achieved largely by pre-test precautions. Ample warnings are given before each test. Troops and AEC workers in the blast area are required to face away from the blast at the instant of explosion. Civil Aeronautics Authority keeps all aircraft out of the test area. If wind and weather conditions are such that radiation or fall-out might be dangerous, the test is postponed.

The AEC system of monitoring all atomic tests is to be continued and strengthened. Public health officials are to be kept advised on the levels of radioactivity from fall-out of explosion. Says the commission: "There is now no reason for alarm, since the radioactivity released by fall-out has proved not to be hazardous."

Cold War Initiative Is Regarded as Being in Hands of U. S. Administration

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Feb. 2—The first step to break the stalemate in Korea has been taken. The initiative in the "cold war" is passing from Moscow to Washington.

Removal of the naval blockade imposed alone by the United States against Chinese Nationalists on Formosa in 1950 means a clearing of the air in the Far East.

This means that the Communist high command must immediately order not only more troops but many air force units to the Chinese mainland bases nearest to Formosa. This means taking them hundreds of miles away from the Korean theatre of operations. This means lessening the forces and the military supplies available to fight the United Nations troops in Korea and hence it could mean such a change in the situation as to compel the Chinese Communists to resume truce talks and to accept the allied viewpoint on armistice terms.

The new move which apparently was among the suggestions received by General Eisenhower when he conferred recently with Admiral Radford, commander in chief of the Pacific fleet and with General MacArthur and others has far more implications than merely giving a new aspect to the Korean war itself. It involves a rebuilding of relationships with Europe, too. John Foster Dulles, secretary of state, timed his visit to London and Paris to enable him to be there coincidentally to explain the move when announced from Washington.

For the strange thing about the naval blockade against the Nationalists on Formosa was that President Truman imposed it as a unilateral act in June 1950. Britain, which had recognized Red China, could not at that time formally approve a military operation against the Peiping government. While Britain and France, for example, as members of the United Nations went along with the resistance to aggression in Korea they were in no way connected with the blockade order against Formosa and their naval ships have taken no part since in that operation even though warships of these European allies have been working constantly as a part of the American fleet along the coast of Korea.

The ostensible purpose of the blockade originally was to "neutralize" Formosa which has come to be regarded in recent years as within the "defense perimeter" of the United States in case of war since to America would fall the primary duty—in behalf of the UN—of protecting the Philippines, Japan, Australia and New Zeland. Military strategists say that along with the island of Okinawa, Formosa must remain in possession of authorities friendly to the free world. That was the essence of the MacArthur recommendation in his speech to the veterans of foreign wars which prior to the Korean outbreak aroused the wrath of President Truman and caused him to order the speech suppressed though, of course, it did become public anyway.

To remove restrictions, therefore, on the Chinese Nationalists and to permit them to raid the coast of Communist China is in a sense a belated reprisal against the intervention of the Communist Chinese troops in the Korean war but it never would have been sanctioned unless President Eisenhower had been convinced by Admiral Radford and General Chase, head of the American military mission on Formosa, that the Nationalists could defend Formosa even though it might be some time before the Nationalist troops themselves could mount an attack on the mainland of China.

For all practical purposes the move doesn't mean any large-scale military operations in and around Formosa in the immediate future but it certainly starts to clear up the Far Eastern situation.

Notice has been served moreover on Moscow that the Eisenhower administration, continuing to recognize the government of Chiang Kai-Shek on Formosa as the legitimate government of China, may decide to honor requests for assistance which such a government may make in accordance with international custom. Thus the government of Greece for example sought and obtained in 1947 American aid in driving Communists out of her sovereign territory. Assistance to a recognized government is, under international law, not considered intervention in the internal affairs of such a country.

These changes from the Truman-Acheson policy of stagnation to an affirmative policy of action clearly signify that Russia will have to do the guessing from now on—and that pressure of one kind or another to compel Moscow to ease world tension will be unremitting and this doesn't involve any attacks on Russia proper or hostilities such as would be involved in another world war. It certainly does not mean any American forces will be sent to China proper.

Congress will go along with the new policies enthusiastically. Indeed an inquiry to determine just why President Truman stopped General MacArthur from destroying the bridges across the Yalu river, thus permitting the Chinese armies in November, 1950, to pour across into Korea now will be urged. General MacArthur revealed that piece of news for the first time over the weekend and it is bound to cause some committee of Congress to ask to look at the records to find out why the State Department—which undoubtedly ordered the action countermanded—gave the Communist Chinese their present military advantage in Korea at a terrific cost of American casualties.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

I would like to lend you the $500 because I know how painful your emergency is but these days a fellow must earn at least $1,000 and perhaps as much as $1,500 to clear $500 for himself after taxes. You can see what that means in our case. I know as well as you do that a broken hip is a terribly expensive proposition in an old lady and I devoutly hope that our inventive genius will come up with something on the order of a harness or derrick that will reduce the incidence of broken hip in elderly mothers-in-law, getting in and/or out of bathtubs.

Statistics show that in the fiscal year 1950-51, broken hips of mothers-in-law rose 12.7 per cent above fiscal 1949-1950 and that the cost of hospital rooms, nurses' salaries, surgical care, including those pins and the process of putting them in and taking them out, taxis to and from hospital for members of the family, flowers, X-rays and incidentals increased 24.8 per cent.

Now, in your position, working for a shaky company and facing the fact of your unfortunate lack of competence to progress further in your line of business, we have to face the probability that you would never be able to pay me back the $500. Knowing you as I do, I would count on you not to put aside your dimes and quarters in a cookie jar and to pay me off $5 or $10 at a time. People used to do that but they just don't do it any more and moreover they have an idea that a fellow with an earning capacity relatively larger than their own has plently of money and doesn't miss $500 or $1,000. I don't blame you, because an income of $25,000 a year sounds like a million, for not realizing that the income tax bite gets deeper as the income mounts higher.

I will tell you what, though.

I don't mind lending or giving you the $500 and hope it would help you in your trouble. I know what worry you are suffering and your poor wife is such a wonderful girl and so loyal and frugal that I would like to save her a little sleeplessness if I can. So, I will send you the $500 but I want you to sign a note for it with interest at, say, one per cent so that the deal will be strictly businesslike. Let us make it a three-year note so that I can get it off the books in a reasonable time.

At the end of three years I will write you a formal demand for the $500, plus interest and you can write me a rather insulting letter telling me that you have no assets, that your salary is barely enough to cover your current needs, that your insurance is all borrowed up and that, anyway, I ought to be ashamed to demand my money, a man of my income and wealth. Lay it on a little because I want to be able to show the Internal Revenue that I made a conscientious effort to collect a "bad" debt but failed for no want of sincere harassment.

Now this will put you into the record as a penny ante Elliott Roosevelt, but people will realize that we had to do this in order to redress a disadvantage put upon us by the income tax laws, and will make allowances. They will say I was a nice guy to get up the $500, they will understand that you honestly couldn't carry the load, they will see that it was a gift of friendship and they will applaud both of us for finding a way to duck the payment of a 100 per cent or even a 200 per cent penalty in income taxes on an act of generosity to an old friend.

If I wanted to give $500 to the

"We have frequent debates about the best way to play Samba," writes a Cincinnati correspondent. "As you know, this is the game in which you play with three decks and are allowed to melt sequences that are worth 1500 points.

"It seems obvious to some of us that the sequence canasta, or samba, is the really distinctive feature of the game. If you want to go after seven of a kind, which is also possible, you might just as well stick to ordinary Canasta instead of playing Samba.

"Some of the members of our club differ with this opinion. They like to play to meld out quickly. Perhaps I can explain by comparing it to the game of baseball. It is very exciting to see a player hit a home run with the bases loaded. It is also exciting to see a good pitcher strike out a dangerous batter when the bases are loaded. In short, there is such a thing as brilliant defensive play as well as brilliant offensive play. We cannot afford to sniff at either one.

A Samba player who always tries to meld sequences will do well on many hands but will lose a large number of points on other hands. Similarly, a player who always tries the defensive maneuver of melding out quickly will lose many high-scoring opportunities.

The expert does not try to force the cards into a prearranged pattern. He tries to meld out quickly when he has a hand suited to that purpose, and he goes after sequences when his hand provides opportunity for high scoring.

U. S. Bond Sales Show Steady Rise In Ulster County

Ulster county sales of Series E and H defense bonds during 1952 reflects the continuing upward trend in sales since the bonds were improved last May, William F. Edelmuth, chairman of the Ulster County Defense Bonds Committee, reported today.

December, 1952, E and H sales in the county amounted to $82,700, which was $27,700 higher than E bond sales during the same month in 1951, he said. Series H is the current income E-type bond which has been on sale since June 1, 1952.

"These increases in defense bond sales show that the people in Ulster county are responding favorably to the increased interest rates and other improvements in the bonds and that they are more determined than ever to provide for their individual security and for America's defense," Edelmuth stated.

"This stamp will be issued to all post offices on George Washington's birthday. He is the father of our militia and has been the guiding light of our National Guard through the years."

U. S. Bond Sales Show Steady Rise In Ulster County

Ulster county sales of Series E and H defense bonds during 1952 reflects the continuing upward trend in sales since the bonds were improved last May, William F. Edelmuth, chairman of the Ulster County Defense Bonds Committee, reported today.

December, 1952, E and H sales in the county amounted to $82,700, which was $27,700 higher than E bond sales during the same month in 1951, he said. Series H is the current income E-type bond which has been on sale since June 1, 1952.

"These increases in defense bond sales show that the people in Ulster county are responding favorably to the increased interest rates and other improvements in the bonds and that they are more determined than ever to provide for their individual security and for America's defense," Edelmuth stated.

President Authorizes National Guard Stamp

The postmaster general has been authorized by the President to issue a commemorative three-cent U. S. postage stamp as a tribute to the National Guard, it was announced today.

The stamp honors the National Guard because it is the oldest military organization in the United States, the postmaster general stated, "and because National Guard citizen-soldiers have faithfully served the nation in war and peace since colonial times. The National Guard has made vital contributions to the security of the nation in every emergency...

"This stamp will be issued to all post offices on George Washington's birthday. He is the father of our militia and has been the guiding light of our National Guard through the years."

A BB shot dropped into the end of the valve stem will help inflate a tire when the valve has been screwed so far into the stem that the airhose connection will not depress it. The shot, of course, must be removed before replacing the valve-stem cap.

Why We Say--

A HEAD PORTER'S SUCCESS

The estate of the head porter of a New York city hotel has recently been settled. He left $60,000 in sound securities—mostly common stocks. He never received as salary more than $200 a month. The size of his estate was eloquent testimony to his thrift and his discerning investment. And his savings reflected the unselfish services he rendered hotel guests without expecting any reward.

He saved and invested during many critical periods: (1) the first World War; (2) the depression thirties; (3) the second World War. He bought good stocks in 1928 and 1929 when they sold at peak prices. He purchased additional shares of the same stocks at panic prices in 1932 and 1933.

He never bought the stock of a corporation that he, personally, had not patronized. He came from North Carolina in his late teens and got a job at the hotel where he ended his labors. He left several hundred shares of stock in the railroad he rode to and from his ancestral home during his vacations.

He had shares in the bank in New York where he carried an account for 50 years. He owned a great sheaf of five, 10 and 25 share public utility certificates. This company got a check promptly from him monthly for many years for the gas and electricity he used in his home.

He was part owner of New York city's largest store, of one of America's leading distributors of butter and eggs and milk, of the world's largest communication system and of a big oil company which had a station near his home.

During the years of his promotion at the hotel, he endeared himself to many of the permanent guests. He performed hundred of tasks without having his hand out. He was a quasi-valet to one of the greatest American actors—John Drew. Drew rewarded him once a year—at Christmas time. And many $100, $200 and $500 gifts went into growth securities that, on a cost basis, were paying him 35 per cent and 50 per cent a year when he passed on.

Christmas was always a "windfall" time for this head porter and from around December 15th to January 15th was his most opulent investment period.

Wars and rumors of wars, inflation and deflation, scare headlines in newspapers about impending economic disaster, stock exchange boardroom gossip about the rosy future for a promotional enterprise, bull and bear markets—none of these things turned the attentions of this man away from his appointed rounds of thrift, saving and investment. He bought sound shares when prices were high (too high) and when prices were low (too low).

And on a lifetime maximum salary of $200 a month and without a penurious standard of living, he left an estate of $60,000. It is a story for all time; it is a capital story for 1953.

Recently in this column I have said that I believe the administration in Washington will start taking economic America off a high plateau of inflation. Perhaps before this shall appear, something will have been done to remove present price and wage controls, I hope so.

Today, we have an inflationary dollar. In most fields its purchasing power is low. A dollar of integrity and low prices are better for the country than an inflationary dollar and high prices. But any movement to curb inflation will cause alarm in many circles.

That is why the years 1953-1956 may be disturbing to thousands of investors—real and potential. Many will sell good stocks without logical reason; many will hesitate to buy because of unsettled conditions. That is why this story of the head porter is timely. He bought high, he bought low. But he bought quality and held on to it.

America must enjoy a measure of prosperity if Uncle Sam is to collect enough in taxes to pay his bills. It is as simple as that. And ownership of shares in the leading enterprises is the best program for investors.

(Q) "I am in religious work, age 32, with two young children, ages three and six. I am saving $40 a month for their education. What plan of investment would you suggest? I have enough insurance.

(A) Bank your educational savings this year. In December 1953, you will have $480. At that time, have your banker or investment adviser select two or three sound, growth common stocks of enterprise that have unfailingly paid dividends for 25 consecutive years. Using good judgment, buy these shares, have them registered in your name, deposit the dividends in a separate savings account and periodically use these dividends to purchase additional shares. Repeat this operation yearly, broadening your investment base as you deem best.

Harry C. France will answer one letter each week through this column. If you have any investment questions, write in care of this newspaper.

SLA Says Ratio Of Dry Towns Small

Albany, Feb. 2 (AP)—Only about one New York state resident in 180 lives in a "dry" community, the State Liquor Authority reports.

The SLA said last night that a total of 82,683 persons lived in communities which ban the sale of liquor for both on and off-premise consumption.

That number is slightly more than one-half of 1 per cent of the state's population of 14,830,192, as reported by the 1950 census.

Six communities held local-option elections last year on the wet-or-dry question, the SLA said. Three communities voted to stay wet, one decided to remain dry, one "dry" area voted to allow sales for off-premises consumption, and one "wet" district decided to stop sales for off-premises use.

In rare cases a tiger may be all black or all white in color.

Pencil Pricks Conscience

Des Moines (AP)—E. E. Edwards' eyes popped when he opened a letter he received recently at his filling station. The letter, postmarked at Vici, Okla., said the writer had inadvertently carried off a pencil belonging to Edwards when he was in Des Moines last summer. "I didn't give it much thought, but must pay for it because it isn't mine," the letter said. Enclosed in the letter was one nickel.

A HEAD PORTER'S SUCCESS

The estate of the head porter of a New York city hotel has recently been settled. He left $60,000 in sound securities—mostly common stocks. He never received as salary more than $200 a month. The size of his estate was eloquent testimony to his thrift and his discerning investment. And his savings reflected the unselfish services he rendered hotel guests without expecting any reward.

He saved and invested during many critical periods: (1) the first World War; (2) the depression thirties; (3) the second World War. He bought good stocks in 1928 and 1929 when they sold at peak prices. He purchased additional shares of the same stocks at panic prices in 1932 and 1933.

He never bought the stock of a corporation that he, personally, had not patronized. He came from North Carolina in his late teens and got a job at the hotel where he ended his labors. He left several hundred shares of stock in the railroad he rode to and from his ancestral home during his vacations.

He had shares in the bank in New York where he carried an account for 50 years. He owned a great sheaf of five, 10 and 25 share public utility certificates. This company got a check promptly from him monthly for many years for the gas and electricity he used in his home.

He was part owner of New York city's largest store, of one of America's leading distributors of butter and eggs and milk, of the world's largest communication system and of a big oil company which had a station near his home.

During the years of his promotion at the hotel, he endeared himself to many of the permanent guests. He performed hundred of tasks without having his hand out. He was a quasi-valet to one of the greatest American actors—John Drew. Drew rewarded him once a year—at Christmas time. And many $100, $200 and $500 gifts went into growth securities that, on a cost basis, were paying him 35 per cent and 50 per cent a year when he passed on.

Christmas was always a "windfall" time for this head porter and from around December 15th to January 15th was his most opulent investment period.

Wars and rumors of wars, inflation and deflation, scare headlines in newspapers about impending economic disaster, stock exchange boardroom gossip about the rosy future for a promotional enterprise, bull and bear markets—none of these things turned the attentions of this man away from his appointed rounds of thrift, saving and investment. He bought sound shares when prices were high (too high) and when prices were low (too low).

And on a lifetime maximum salary of $200 a month and without a penurious standard of living, he left an estate of $60,000. It is a story for all time; it is a capital story for 1953.

Recently in this column I have said that I believe the administration in Washington will start taking economic America off a high plateau of inflation. Perhaps before this shall appear, something will have been done to remove present price and wage controls, I hope so.

Today, we have an inflationary dollar. In most fields its purchasing power is low. A dollar of integrity and low prices are better for the country than an inflationary dollar and high prices. But any movement to curb inflation will cause alarm in many circles.

That is why the years 1953-1956 may be disturbing to thousands of investors—real and potential. Many will sell good stocks without logical reason; many will hesitate to buy because of unsettled conditions. That is why this story of the head porter is timely. He bought high, he bought low. But he bought quality and held on to it.

America must enjoy a measure of prosperity if Uncle Sam is to collect enough in taxes to pay his bills. It is as simple as that. And ownership of shares in the leading enterprises is the best program for investors.

(Q) "I am in religious work, age 32, with two young children, ages three and six. I am saving $40 a month for their education. What plan of investment would you suggest? I have enough insurance."

(A) Bank your educational savings this year. In December 1953, you will have $480. At that time, have your banker or investment adviser select two or three sound, growth common stocks of enterprise that have unfailingly paid dividends for 25 consecutive years. Using good judgment, buy these shares, have them registered in your name, deposit the dividends in a separate savings account and periodically use these dividends to purchase additional shares. Repeat this operation yearly, broadening your investment base as you deem best.

Harry C. France will answer one letter each week through this column. If you have any investment questions, write in care of this newspaper.

SLA Says Ratio Of Dry Towns Small

Albany, Feb. 2 (AP)—Only about one New York state resident in 180 lives in a "dry" community, the State Liquor Authority reports.

The SLA said last night that a total of 82,683 persons lived in communities which ban the sale of liquor for both on and off-premise consumption.

That number is slightly more than one-half of 1 per cent of the state's population of 14,830,192, as reported by the 1950 census.

Six communities held local-option elections last year on the wet-or-dry question, the SLA said. Three communities voted to stay wet, one decided to remain dry, one "dry" area voted to allow sales for off-premises consumption, and one "wet" district decided to stop sales for off-premises use.

Local Army Nurse Will Participate in Corps Anniversary

CAPTAIN ROSE STRALEY

Participating in festivities commemorating the 52nd anniversary of the Army Nurse Corps, will be Captain Rose V. Straley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis M. Straley, Sr., 70 Stephan street. Captain Straley is on duty with the corps, at the U. S. Army Hospital, Fort Bragg, N. C.

The Nurses Corps was organized on Feb. 2, 1901. Celebration of this year's anniversary began with a three-day open house program on Thursday at Fort Bragg. Nurses at the hospital will entertain high school seniors from nearby Fayetteville during the open house.

The seniors, who are potential nurse material, will be shown the operations of wards and clinics. They will have a chance to see topflight nurse procedures at its best.

The open house will be climaxed by a tea to be given today for students and faculty of the Highsmith Hospital of Fayetteville, N. C.

Long, Colorful History

The Army Nurse Corps has had a long and colorful history. During World War II nurses served in England, Scotland, Ireland, Belgium, Italy, the Pacific, in Iceland and Alaska. They saw service on hospital trains, planes and ships, as well as in evacuation and field hospitals.

Before and during World War 2, nurse recruiting for the Armed Forces was handled by the American Red Cross. In April, 1947, Army and Navy nurses received permanent rank equalizing their positions with that of other officers in the service.

Citations

Captain Straley has been in the Army Nurse Corps since 1942, has seen service in North Africa and Italy. During this period, she received the Unit Merit Award, the American Theatre Ribboh, the Victory Ribbon, and four battle stars.

Captain Straley attended Kingston High School, graduated from the Kingston Hospital School of Nursing and also received a B. S. degree from the New York University School of Education. She is presently serving as instructor for the Student Detachment.

YWCA Holds Annual Meeting, Eight Directors Elected

Over 75 members of the YWCA attended the annual meeting held at the YWCA Thursday, Jan. 29th. Following dinner, the business meeting was held with the highlight being the announcement by the nominating committee of the results of the ballots returned by the membership for one-third of the board of directors for a three-year term.

The directors elected are Mrs. Vincent A. Carr, Mrs. N. Jansen Fowler, Mrs. Vincent R. Guido, Miss Jean Harvey, Mrs. Russell S. Moore, Miss Frances J. Osterhoudt, Mrs. Joseph F. Pfrommer, and Mrs. W. Dale Swartzmiller. The nominating committee for the coming year was also elected and includes Mrs. F. W. Holcomb, Mrs. Chas. A. Terwilliger, Mrs. R. H. VanValkenburgh, representing the board; and Miss Lucy Berryann, Mrs. Peter D. Corsones, Miss Emily D. B. Hoysradt, Mrs. George Ross, representing the membership at large.

Hobby Show Dates

Mrs. Theron Culver, president, announced that the fourth annual hobby show will be held May 5, 6, and 7 at the Municipal Auditorium, the general chairman to be appointed by the new president of the board of directors, following her election in February.

Mrs. Fred Port and Miss Lucile Palmer presented their reports on the YWCA national convention held in Chicago last May. They attended as official delegates representing the Kingston association. Preliminary plans for the celebration of the 100th Anniversary of the YWCA were launched at that time, and will be jointly celebrated by local YWCAs all over the world during their centennial year—1955.

Mrs. Henry P. Eighmey, chairman of the Alberta E. Davis Memorial Fund, reported on the fund, and the use to which it had already been put, and reminded the members that the period between the annual meeting and national YWCA Week in April was the time for remembering and for renewing this memorial.

Budget

The 1953 Budget was presented by the chairman of the finance committee, Mrs. W. Dale Swartzmiller, showing estimated income of $13,500 which is $1,200 less than will be needed to run the YWCA in 1953. After discussion the membership offered to once again assume a personal responsibility in making up the deficit, through home card parties, auctions, and various other means. It was explained that the deficit was caused by the Annual Drive for Funds falling considerably short of the $9,500 Goal.

A plan of memberships of three types, participating, contributing and sustaining, was presented by the membership committee chairman, Mrs. Harold F. Davis, and was adopted by the electors on a trial basis.

30th Annual Meeting

The occasion marked the local organization's 30th annual meeting. Upon inquiry, 19 charter members were found to be in attendance. They are Mrs. Charles Arnold, Miss Lucy Berryann, Mrs. Edward Bonesteel, Miss Florence Cordts, Miss Helen Gronemeyer, Miss Jessie Goodsell, Miss Emily D. B. Hoysradt, Mrs. William C. Kingman, Miss Matilda Martin, Miss Frances J. Osterhoudt, Mrs. Joseph F. Pfrommer, Mrs. Lancelot Phelps, Miss Bea Powley, Mrs. Harry Smith, Mrs. M. S. Safford, Mrs. Charles A. Terwilliger, Miss Grace Terwilliger, Mrs. Frank W. Thompson, Miss Bertha Waterman.

After the business meeting, the membership committee presented a short skit entitled Mrs. Y Be a Member, adapted to the occasion by Mrs. Harold F. Davis, and played by Miss Mabel Cook and Mrs. Fred Port, with Mrs. W. Dale Swartzmiller, Mrs. John Warren and Mrs. Henry Eighmey in minor roles.

Personal Notes

Mrs. Dorothy Buehring attended the second annual luncheon meeting of Delta Kappa Gamma, honorary society for women educators, held recently in the Commodore Hotel, New York City. Mrs. Buehring, former president of Mu chapter, western New York, represented the local area.

Mrs. John L. MacKinnon of 181 North Manor avenue; and Mrs. John B. Sterley, 189 North Manor avenue, attended the National Republican Women's Club luncheon on Saturday at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York.

Art Supervisor Will Discuss Program With Parents and Teachers

Alvin E. Most, supervisor of art within the Kingston elementary schools, will be the guest speaker at the mid-winter meeting of the Parents and Teachers Organization of School 5, which will be held on Thursday at 7:30 p. m.

As a vehicle to wider understanding and appreciation of children's art, Mr. Most will present the topic, Fostering a better art program within the Public Schools through Parent and Teacher Cooperation. Illustrating his talk with a film, Finger Painting, Mr. Most will contrast the modern approach to art through the development of a child's natural expression of creative ability as compared with the outmoded techniques or devices once popular within the public schools.

Exhibiting a collection of children's art from the Kingston elementary schools, Mr. Most will demonstrate the vital need for adult recognition and appreciation of the natural developmental processes of a maturing child in relation to an art program.

Mr. Most will lend to the discussion a rich background gained through personal painting and the actual teaching of children. He began his career in art by attending the National Academy of Design in New York city. Receiving a scholarship, he entered New York University from which he graduated with a B.S. degree in art.

As further recognition, Mr. Most was awarded a combined scholarship and fellowship enabling him to study with the late Max Beckman, German expressionist painter, and later with Hans Hofmann, at Provincetown and New York city.

The meeting will also feature Hobby Night. All members or interested persons are invited to exhibit their hobbies. The hobbies will be arranged in the kindergarten assembly room prior to the meeting.

The program will conclude with a social hour giving all members and guests an opportunity to view the hobbies on display. Refreshments will be served.

PHOTOGRAPHER'S PLAINT

Few people realize the unfairness of the following situation: "I am an amateur photographer and whenever any of my friends have parties, they always ask me to bring my camera and take pictures. After these pictures are developed, practically all who are included in any of the pictures ask me to make them a print. This is an expensive hobby, which most people fail to realize and I am not well off enough to be able to give pictures by the dozen. Will you please tell me how this can be handled tactfully and without appearing 'cheap?'"

I agree that you are in a very difficult situation that many others have found equally hard to meet. The only way I know is to explain to several of your most intimate friends the predicament you are in and ask them to come to your aid in explaining frankly the cost of these prints to you not only in time, but in a quite serious amount of money.

Introducing New Employe

Dear Mrs. Post: I am leaving my position at the office and will have to train a new girl to do my work. The problem at hand is, how should she be introduced to fellow employes? Do I introduce her as Mary Brown, or should she be introduced as Miss Brown? This is a small friendly office and everyone calls everyone else by his first name.

Answer: I think to call her Miss Brown is very stiff and stilted, and Mary Brown much more friendly and also more in the spirit of the office you have described.

Ring on Right Hand

Dear Mrs. Post: Would it be proper to wear my engagement ring on my right hand instead of the left? My problem is that the third finger of my left hand is out of joint due to an injury, and is not very attractive.

Answer: Under the circumstances, I think your suggestion is the practical solution.

Senate House Museum Exhibits Woodstock Artist's Designs

An exhibit of abstract designs at the Senate House Museum is the work of Marguerite Evans Isaacs of Woodstock.

The 118 pictures on display were all drawn by Mrs. Issacs since last August. The abstracts, most of them pure design and not representations, lean heavily toward geometric patterns, and their strong point is the color blending.

Most of the works are done in the artist's favorite mediums, crayon, oil stick and speed ball pen.

Mrs. Issacs has resided in Woodstock the past year and a half, after some years in the mid-West. She is a former resident of the area, having resided on the Maverick road up to about 10 years ago.

Daughter Contributes

On display with the exhibit is a folder of work done by Mrs. Isaacs' 10-year-old daughter, Lynn Evans Issacs, which provides the background for the story of Mrs. Isaacs' own art work.

The artist, who still considers her art work in the nature of a hobby (although she does hope to get into commercial art work) began her drawing only about four years ago when she was teaching her daughter drawing as a means of acquiring rhythm and freedom of motion.

The mother and daughter, who are devoted to each other, are proud of the references to them as a team, a title they earned largely through their art work. Actually, Mrs. Isaacs has undertaken herself the entire early education of her daughter and has taken her through the equivalent of the fifth grade. Neither has had any formal art training, although they were "exposed" to it through associations about four years ago when they lived at a large mid-west art school.

Phone Senate House

The current exhibit, in the basement room at the Senate House Museum, has had its difficulties due to the work in progress there on the installation of a new heating system. Twice hung and taken down to make way for the workmen, the exhibit will remain there this month, but with no assurance that it will be on display at any given time because still further work needs be done in the room. A telephone call to the Senate House Museum before visiting the exhibit will give the exact status of the exhibit as of the moment and may save the disappointment of having to make an additional trip.

Leaders Discuss Program

On Thursday, Jan. 29, Ulster County Home Bureau health leaders met to discuss the program for the coming year. Miss Blanche Armstrong, health specialist from Cornell University, was also present to talk over plans with the group and make recommendations and suggestions.

The leaders unanimously agreed to have Relaxation, the topic for next year's health program.

Those attending were Mrs. Myrtle Brown, Hurley; Mrs. Gustav Immisch, Mrs. Edward Scherer, Kingston; Mrs. Evelyn Fiero, Mrs. Douglas Finger, Quarryville; Mrs. Una Freligh, Mrs. Lillian Compitello, Centerville; Mrs. Harry VandeMark, Wiltwyck; Mrs. W. Facts and Opinions

The Ulster County Home Bureau is cooperating with Cornell University in asking a cross section of homemakers to give some facts and opinions that will help them in program planning in Ulster county and throughout New York state.

Names were drawn to give a cross section of enrollment and questionnaires were sent out. If you are one of the homemakers who received the questionnaire and have not yet returned it, please do so. If copy has been mislaid, call the office, Kingston 3494, or send a post card and another questionnaire will be provided.

Freezer Operation

Freezer operation cost is lowest with greatest use of the freezer. Eat from your freezer every day, keep it filled near the brim, and you'll keep your storage cost for each pound of food low. When you put only 490 pounds of food in a 14 cubic foot freezer during the year, it costs you 25 cents a pound for storage. When you use as much as 1225 pounds from your freezer in a year, you cut the cost for storage to 11 cents a pound. If you have a freezer have a plan for its use. It will help to save you money.

The Nurses Corps was organized on Feb. 2, 1901. Celebration of this year's anniversary began with a three-day open house program on Thursday at Fort Bragg. Nurses at the hospital will entertain high school seniors from nearby Fayetteville during the open house.

The open house will be climaxed by a tea to be given today for students and faculty of the Highsmith Hospital of Fayetteville, N. C.

The directors elected are Mrs. Vincent A. Carr, Mrs. N. Jansen Fowler, Mrs. Vincent R. Guido, Miss Jean Harvey, Mrs. Russell S. Moore, Miss Frances J. Osterhoudt, Mrs. Joseph F. Pfrommer, and Mrs. W. Dale Swartzmiller. The nominating committee for the coming year was also elected and includes Mrs. F. W. Holcomb, Mrs. Chas. A. Terwilliger, Mrs. R. H. Mrs. Fred Port and Miss Lucile Palmer presented their reports on the YWCA national convention held in Chicago last May. They attended as official delegates representing the Kingston association. Mrs. Henry P. Eighmey, chairman of the Alberta E. Davis Memorial Fund, reported on the fund, and the use to which it had already been put, and reminded the members that the period between the annual meeting and national YWCA Week in April was the time for remembering and for renewing this memorial.

Budget

The 1953 Budget was presented by the chairman of the finance committee, Mrs. W. Dale Swartzmiller, showing estimated income of $13,500 which is $1,200 less than will be needed to run the YWCA in 1953. After discussion the membership offered to once again assume a personal responsibility in making up the deficit, through home card parties, auctions, and various other means. It was explained that the deficit was caused by the Annual Drive for Funds falling considerably short of the $9,500 Goal.

A plan of memberships of three types, participating, contributing and sustaining, was presented by the membership committee chairman, Mrs. Harold F. Davis, and was adopted by the electors on a trial basis.

Art Supervisor Will Discuss Program With Parents and Teachers

Alvin E. Most, supervisor of art within the Kingston elementary schools, will be the guest speaker at the mid-winter meeting of the Parents and Teachers Organization of School 5, which will be held on Thursday at 7:30 p. m.

As a vehicle to wider understanding and appreciation of children's art, Mr. Most will present the topic, Fostering a better art program within the Public Schools through Parent and Teacher Cooperation. Illustrating his talk with a film, Finger Painting, Mr. Most will contrast the modern approach to art through the development of a child's natural expression of creative ability as compared with the outmoded techniques or devices once popular within the public schools.

Exhibiting a collection of children's art from the Kingston elementary schools, Mr. Most will demonstrate the vital need for adult recognition and appreciation of the natural developmental processes of a maturing child in relation to an art program.

Mr. Most will lend to the discussion a rich background gained through personal painting and the actual teaching of children. He began his career in art by attending the National Academy of Design in New York city. Receiving a scholarship, he entered New York University from which he graduated with a B.S. degree in art.

As further recognition, Mr. Most was awarded a combined scholarship and fellowship enabling him to study with the late Max Beckman, German expressionist painter, and later with Hans Hofmann, at Provincetown and New York city.

GOOD TASTE TODAY

PHOTOGRAPHER'S PLAINT

Few people realize the unfairness of the following situation: "I am an amateur photographer and whenever any of my friends have parties, they always ask me to bring my camera and take pictures. After these pictures are developed, practically all who are included in any of the pictures ask me to make them a print. This is an expensive hobby, which most people fail to realize and I am not well off enough to be able to give pictures by the dozen. Will you please tell me how this can be handled tactfully and without appearing 'cheap?'"

I agree that you are in a very difficult situation that many others have found equally hard to meet. The only way I know is to explain to several of your most intimate friends the predicament you are in and ask them to come to your aid in explaining frankly the cost of these prints to you not only in time, but in a quite serious amount of money.

Introducing New Employe

Dear Mrs. Post: I am leaving my position at the office and will have to train a new girl to do my work. The problem at hand is, how should she be introduced to fellow employes? Do I introduce her as Mary Brown, or should she be introduced as Miss Brown? This is a small friendly office and everyone calls everyone else by his first name.

Answer: I think to call her Miss Brown is very stiff and stilted, and Mary Brown much more friendly and also more in the spirit of the office you have described.

Ring on Right Hand

Dear Mrs. Post: Would it be proper to wear my engagement ring on my right hand instead of the left? My problem is that the third finger of my left hand is out of joint due to an injury, and is not very attractive.

Answer: Under the circumstances, I think your suggestion is the practical solution.

Senate House Museum Exhibits Woodstock Artist's Designs

An exhibit of abstract designs at the Senate House Museum is the work of Marguerite Evans Isaacs of Woodstock.

The 118 pictures on display were all drawn by Mrs. Issacs since last August. The abstracts, most of them pure design and not representations, lean heavily toward geometric patterns, and their strong point is the color blending.

Most of the works are done in the artist's favorite mediums, crayon, oil stick and speed ball pen.

Mrs. Issacs has resided in Woodstock the past year and a half, after some years in the mid-West. She is a former resident of the area, having resided on the Maverick road up to about 10 years ago.

Daughter Contributes

On display with the exhibit is a folder of work done by Mrs. Isaacs' 10-year-old daughter, Lynn Evans Issacs, which provides the background for the story of Mrs. Isaacs' own art work.

The artist, who still considers her art work in the nature of a hobby (although she does hope to get into commercial art work) began her drawing only about four years ago when she was teaching her daughter drawing as a means of acquiring rhythm and freedom of motion.

The mother and daughter, who are devoted to each other, are proud of the references to them as a team, a title they earned largely through their art work. Actually, Mrs. Isaacs has undertaken herself the entire early education of her daughter and has taken her through the equivalent of the fifth grade. Neither has had any formal art training, although they were "exposed" to it through associations about four years ago when they lived at a large mid-west art school.

Phone Senate House

The current exhibit, in the basement room at the Senate House Museum, has had its difficulties due to the work in progress there on the installation of a new heating system. Twice hung and taken down to make way for the workmen, the exhibit will remain there this month, but with no assurance that it will be on display at any given time because still further work needs be done in the room. A telephone call to the Senate House Museum before visiting the exhibit will give the exact status of the exhibit as of the moment and may save the disappointment of having to make an additional trip.

Fister, Mrs. Garon, Mrs. Burton L. Haver, Mrs. S. D. Hiltebrant, Mrs. F. Holcomb, Mrs. Louis Kegler, Mrs. Lacey, Mrs. Le Fever, Mrs. Robert F. Trustees of the Children's Home are the Rev. J. Dean Dykstra, N. Jansen Fowler, Harry T. Gumaer, Stephen D. Hiltebrant, Dr. Frederic W. Holcomb, George Kaufman, W. C. Kingman, James Loughran and Alfred Schmid.

The report of the president and executive director follows, along with the financial report for 1952:

To the Board of Managers and Trustees of the Children's Home in Kingston.

Reviewing last year's annual report I mentioned in the last paragraph that "we were looking forward to a year of growth and development." This has been accomplished in many ways.

Our girls' cottage, "Highcliff" has been completed and we are very proud of it. Under the supervision of Mrs. Guerin the "house" is a "home" for the girls.

The children attended the YMCA day camp this summer. This proved to be a most healthy camp program because they were able to have a full camping period of two months instead of two weeks away from Kingston. In this program we give our thanks to the Edward M. Stanbrough Fund and the committee in charge.

This year was the first in the history of the Home that we felt we had to go to the public for financial aid. The cost of maintenance and program for teenagers is quite different than it was when we had many pre-school children years ago. The response to our appeal has been very gratifying because we have many friends that help support us each year, regardless of an appeal. To all who have given to the Home in the past year, our heartful thanks.

The Shrine Club of Kingston again spent many hours to make their annual Ball for the Children's Home a success. To them may I say how grateful we are for their support for many years.

Kingston was fortunate to be able to hear the Rochester Civic Orchestra through the generosity of the Canfield Supply Company, the Saugerties Coal and Lumber Company and the Shults Paint Company, Inc. The proceeds of this excellent concert were given to the Children's Home. To Mrs. Kegler and her committee, and all who helped make this affair the great success that it was may we again say, "thank you."

It would be difficult to enumerate the many gifts received during the year and the givers; these are all mentioned in the press from month to month and also thanked personally, but I would like once again to tell all the "Friends" of the Home how much their gifts mean to us—be it money, food, clothing or anything that we can use.

Workers Are Active

Our various committees have been very active during the past year. To the committee chairman and to all members of the Board of Managers and Trustees may I express how much I appreciated your wholehearted interest and cooperation during my term as president. Without your constant help our program could not have been carried out as successfully as it has been. The chairmen will make their reports on maintenance and running of the Home so I will not go into detail on these subjects.

I want to thank the press, WKNY, the doctors, dentists, City Laboratory, Welfare Department in helping us with our problems. The Mayor for his assistance when it was needed and all who helped us make this year a successful one.

Last, but not least, I want to thank the personnel of the Home who have daily contact with our family, for the care and understanding they have shown our children in the past year. Without such care our position in the community would not be what it is today.

To our executive director, Frank White, may I say, thank you, for a year of promises fulfilled and may the next year show added growth in the Children's Home of Kingston.

Respectfully submitted,
EMMA W. HOLCOMB,
President
(Mrs. F. W. Holcomb)

Report of the Executive Director

To the President, Members of the Board of Managers and Trustees:

The reports as presented by the chairmen of the various committees have well summed up the details and statistics pertaining to our activities during 1952.

As your executive director, it has been most interesting and revealing to review some the the reports dating as far back as 1876 and following them through the early 1900's—and up to today These reports confirm without the slightest shadow of a doubt that the purpose for which the Children's Home was founded has been most successfully ushered through 76 years of service to the community. This has not "just happened," and there is the history of those years that involved many trials and tribulations. The Children's Home and what it represents today is the result of 76 years of real effort, real interest and yes—hard work on the part of many, many citizens of the community and on the part of those individuals who have chosen to take an active part as an employe or as a volunteer interested in assisting toward the goals that have been reached. It is true that techniques have changed, terminology has differed, methods have improved, but the purpose of the Children's Home remained fairly constant—"service to children who through no fault of theirs are a community responsibility.

You, the members of the Board of Managers, who are before me today, are doing so much to carry on all of the wonderful traditions represented in our daily activities, can be proud of your accomplishments. As your administrator, it has been such a pleasure to assist you in attaining new and greater goals that enrich "the purpose" of the Children's Home. I report humbly, but nevertheless with a strong inner pride, that we have accomplished many things during the year. The physical improvements have been costly, but at the same time have increased our program assets. Our participation in conferences and institutes has given us desirable recognition in child welfare work as well as enhancing our professional approach to the work we carry out. We have actually curtailed in staff and this has been possible due to the qualifications and "devotion to duty" attitude and performance on the part of those who carry ont the daily routines of the program.

'Old Friends' Remain

The need for additional funds to carry on our work was recognized—a goal was set for this challenge and although not attained as our year closes, good progress is already a matter of record. Our many "old friends" in Kingston and the surrounding communities have remained close by our side through this year and we felt the warmth from many, many new friends—we need these many friends in every meaning that the word "friend" implies—a friend is a goal attained in itself, as each friendly word or act helps us in our purpose.

To the trustees, sincere thanks for the continuing help that you have extended in advising on the changes that effect our financial status. Your participation in the special meetings that were called during the year when major decisions had to be made, was indeed most encouraging and helpful. The manner by which you have personally supported our efforts is indeed gratifying and so greatly appreciated.

To the Board of Managers; the committees, executive, finance, personnel, house and grounds, children's, food, publicity and Stanbrough, my many thanks and deep gratitude for your confidence and guidance in directing me through another year of helping you carry out the designed purpose of the Children's Home.

To the staff, my deep appreciation for the loyalty and devotion to duty that has been so brightly in evidence throughout the year. Without "good spokes in the wheel of which I am the hub" we could not roll ahead toward our greater goals. Each of you has served well and I thank you.

Our "team" is strong as we enter 1953—our victories will be many for the Children's Home—its purpose will be fulfilled and advanced.

Respectfully submitted,
FRANK M. WHITE,
Executive Director.

As Pegler Sees It

non-sectarian Anti-Nazi League to hire spies to steal documents from law-abiding citizens, I could deduct that from my taxable income. There are many organizations not much better which enjoy the same privilege of "deductibility." Yet if I want to give $500 to an old friend to see him through a crisis which might end in a family disaster, I have to pay the government at least as much as I give the friend (and perhaps twice as much) to make up for the tax deductions taken by contributors to the Anti-Nazi League for the hire of professional thieves.

But this government, since the Roosevelts came in, hasn't set much store by the family as an institution. You may not realize that actually you pay income tax on money spent for every morsel of food and stitch of clothing which you buy for your wife and each of your children above the exemption of $600 per person per year.

That is the law.

And in the official government instructions published by the Government Printing Office it says "loans to close relatives" which are not paid back "must not be listed as deductible losses."

So a playful fellow who gets in Dutch over some tramp through cheating on his wife and finds it necessary to pay her $10,000 in the guise of a loan, can rig things so as to write it off as a bad debt after a certain time and escape taxes. But if your own brother is broken in health and absolutely down and out and you want to send him to Florida and buy or rent a little place for him, nothing doing. You have to pay Uncle Shylock just as much or twice as much as you want to give or lend your own brother.

But, as I say, you can deduct your contributions to Isidore Lipschultz's Anti-Nazi League to hire thieves to steal from law-abiding citizens. This government just doesn't like the family. The gimmicks on the division of income between husbands and wives—and that ought to be the sublime partnership in our civilization—snow a hostility to the family as an institution.

I am enclosing my check for $500. As soon as you can get around to it, will you please send me your note for the loan?

Sincerely,
GEORGE SPELVIN, American

Monday is bridge lesson day, and as usual I will discuss bidding according to the point-count method so that beginners and average players can see how the experts bid. Just in case you're not familiar with the point-count, here it is: count 4 points for each ace in your hand; 3 for each king; 2 for each queen; 1 for each jack.

There are 10 points in each suit, and 40 points in the entire deck. You and your partner usually need 26 points to make a game; 33 points for a small slam; 37 for a grand slam.

North can barely muster up a free raise to two hearts since he has only 7 points in high cards. However, he is entitled to count 1 point extra for the king of his partner's bid suit and 1 point for the doubleton in clubs. With a count of 9 points, he can afford to raise.

South doesn't count anything for his jack of spades since the bidding clearly makes that worthless. However, South has 16 points in high cards in the other suits, counts 2 points for his two doubletons, and 1 point extra for his length in hearts after North has raised that suit.

His own count is therefore 19 points, and his partner's free raise promises at least 8 points. The combined total is surely more than the 26 points usually needed for a game.

South must exercise care in playing this hand even though he has enough points to make his contract. West begins by leading three top spades, and East discards a club as South ruffs the third round of spades.

This discard should warn declarer of his danger. He cannot afford to enter dummy with the ace of diamonds in order to try the club finesse. The finesse would lose to West's king, and West would lead another spade, forcing declarer to ruff and also giving East a chance to discard his last club.

After this sequence of plays, South would be unable to make his contract. If he drew trumps, he would not be able to ruff his two small clubs in the dummy. If South failed to draw trumps, he would not be able to make his ace of clubs.

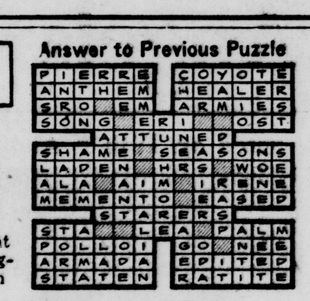

Declarer makes his contract by the simple device of ignoring the finesse in clubs. After ruffing the third round of spades, South simply cashes the ace of clubs and gives up a club trick. Now nothing can prevent declarer from ruffing his remaining clubs with dummy's high trumps, after which the rest is easy.

Tornello Will Get Sentence in New York

New York, Feb. 2 (AP)—Rosario (Frank the Shiek) Tornello, 53, alleged leader of a coast to coast dope ring, will be sentenced Thursday on his guilty plea of conspiracy in the sale of some $60,000 worth of heroin.

The dapper Tornello was arrested last January in an Eastchester, N. Y., bar following a nationwide six-months pursuit by the FBI. The government said he was "connected with top French and Italian sources of narcotics illegally being shipped into the U. S."

The cost of maintenance and program for teenagers is quite different than it was when we had many pre-school children years ago. The response to our appeal has been very gratifying because we have many friends that help support us each year, regardless of an appeal. To all who have given to the Home in the past year, our heartful thanks.

The Shrine Club of Kingston again spent many hours to make their annual Ball for the Children's Home a success. To them may I say how grateful we are for their support for many years.

Kingston was fortunate to be able to hear the Rochester Civic Orchestra through the generosity of the Canfield Supply Company, the Saugerties Coal and Lumber Company and the Shults Paint Company, Inc. The proceeds of this excellent concert were given to the Children's Home. To Mrs. Kegler and her committee, and all who helped make this affair the great success that it was may we again say, "thank you."

It would be difficult to enumerate the many gifts received during the year and the givers; these are all mentioned in the press from month to month and also thanked personally, but I would like once again to tell all the "Friends" of the Home how much their gifts mean to us—be it money, food, clothing or anything that we can use.

Workers Are Active

Our various committees have been very active during the past year. To the committee chairman and to all members of the Board of Managers and Trustees may I express how much I appreciated your wholehearted interest and cooperation during my term as president. Without your constant help our program could not have been carried out as successfully as it has been. The chairmen will make their reports on maintenance and running of the Home so I will not go into detail on these subjects.

I want to thank the press, WKNY, the doctors, dentists, City Laboratory, Welfare Department in helping us with our problems. The Mayor for his assistance when it was needed and all who helped us make this year a successful one.

Last, but not least, I want to thank the personnel of the Home who have daily contact with our family, for the care and understanding they have shown our children in the past year. Without such care our position in the community would not be what it is today.

To our executive director, Frank White, may I say, thank you, for a year of promises fulfilled and may the next year show added growth in the Children's Home of Kingston.

Respectfully submitted,
EMMA W. HOLCOMB,
President
(Mrs. F. W. Holcomb)

Report of the Executive Director

To the President, Members of the Board of Managers and Trustees:

The reports as presented by the chairmen of the various committees have well summed up the details and statistics pertaining to our activities during 1952.

As your executive director, it has been most interesting and revealing to review some the the reports dating as far back as 1876 and following them through the early 1900's—and up to today These reports confirm without the slightest shadow of a doubt that the purpose for which the Children's Home was founded has been most successfully ushered through 76 years of service to the community. This has not "just happened," and there is the history of those years that involved many trials and tribulations. The Children's Home and what it represents today is the result of 76 years of real effort, real interest and yes—hard work on the part of many, many citizens of the community and on the part of those individuals who have chosen to take an active part as an employe or as a volunteer interested in assisting toward the goals that have been reached. It is true that techniques have changed, terminology has differed, methods have improved, but the purpose of the Children's Home remained fairly constant—"service to children who through no fault of theirs are a community responsibility.

You, the members of the Board of Managers, who are before me today, are doing so much to carry on all of the wonderful traditions represented in our daily activities, can be proud of your accomplishments. As your administrator, it has been such a pleasure to assist you in attaining new and greater goals that enrich "the purpose" of the Children's Home. I report humbly, but nevertheless with a strong inner pride, that we have accomplished many things during the year. The physical improvements have been costly, but at the same time have increased our program assets. Our participation in conferences and institutes has given us desirable recognition in child welfare work as well as enhancing our professional approach to the work we carry out. We have actually curtailed in staff and this has been possible due to the qualifications and "devotion to duty" attitude and performance on the part of those who carry ont the daily routines of the program.

'Old Friends' Remain

The need for additional funds to carry on our work was recognized—a goal was set for this challenge and although not attained as our year closes, good progress is already a matter of record. Our many "old friends" in Kingston and the surrounding communities have remained close by our side through this year and we felt the warmth from many, many new friends—we need these many friends in every meaning that the word "friend" implies—a friend is a goal attained in itself, as each friendly word or act helps us in our purpose.

To the trustees, sincere thanks for the continuing help that you have extended in advising on the changes that effect our financial status. Your participation in the special meetings that were called during the year when major decisions had to be made, was indeed most encouraging and helpful. The manner by which you have personally supported our efforts is indeed gratifying and so greatly appreciated.

To the Board of Managers; the committees, executive, finance, personnel, house and grounds, children's, food, publicity and Stanbrough, my many thanks and deep gratitude for your confidence and guidance in directing me through another year of helping you carry out the designed purpose of the Children's Home.

To the staff, my deep appreciation for the loyalty and devotion to duty that has been so brightly in evidence throughout the year. Without "good spokes in the wheel of which I am the hub" we could not roll ahead toward our greater goals. Each of you has served well and I thank you.

Our "team" is strong as we enter 1953—our victories will be many for the Children's Home—its purpose will be fulfilled and advanced.

Respectfully submitted,
FRANK M. WHITE,
Executive Director.

As Pegler Sees It

non-sectarian Anti-Nazi League to hire spies to steal documents from law-abiding citizens, I could deduct that from my taxable income. There are many organizations not much better which enjoy the same privilege of "deductibility." Yet if I want to give $500 to an old friend to see him through a crisis which might end in a family disaster, I have to pay the government at least as much as I give the friend (and perhaps twice as much) to make up for the tax deductions taken by contributors to the Anti-Nazi League for the hire of professional thieves.

But this government, since the Roosevelts came in, hasn't set much store by the family as an institution. You may not realize that actually you pay income tax on money spent for every morsel of food and stitch of clothing which you buy for your wife and each of your children above the exemption of $600 per person per year.

That is the law.

And in the official government instructions published by the Government Printing Office it says "loans to close relatives" which are not paid back "must not be listed as deductible losses."

So a playful fellow who gets in Dutch over some tramp through cheating on his wife and finds it necessary to pay her $10,000 in the guise of a loan, can rig things so as to write it off as a bad debt after a certain time and escape taxes. But if your own brother is broken in health and absolutely down and out and you want to send him to Florida and buy or rent a little place for him, nothing doing. You have to pay Uncle Shylock just as much or twice as much as you want to give or lend your own brother.

But, as I say, you can deduct your contributions to Isidore Lipschultz's Anti-Nazi League to hire thieves to steal from law-abiding citizens. This government just doesn't like the family. The gimmicks on the division of income between husbands and wives—and that ought to be the sublime partnership in our civilization—show a hostility to the family as an institution.

I am enclosing my check for $500. As soon as you can get around to it, will you please send me your note for the loan?

Sincerely,
GEORGE SPELVIN, American

Monday is bridge lesson day, and as usual I will discuss bidding according to the point-count method so that beginners and average players can see how the experts bid. Just in case you're not familiar with the point-count, here it is: count 4 points for each ace in your hand; 3 for each king; 2 for each queen; 1 for each jack.

There are 10 points in each suit, and 40 points in the entire deck. You and your partner usually need 26 points to make a game; 33 points for a small slam; 37 for a grand slam.

North can barely muster up a free raise to two hearts since he has only 7 points in high cards. However, he is entitled to count 1 point extra for the king of his partner's bid suit and 1 point for the doubleton in clubs. With a count of 9 points, he can afford to raise.

South doesn't count anything for his jack of spades since the bidding clearly makes that worthless. However, South has 16 points in high cards in the other suits, counts 2 points for his two doubletons, and 1 point extra for his length in hearts after North has raised that suit.

His own count is therefore 19 points, and his partner's free raise promises at least 8 points. The combined total is surely more than the 26 points usually needed for a game.

South must exercise care in playing this hand even though he has enough points to make his contract. West begins by leading three top spades, and East discards a club as South ruffs the third round of spades.

This discard should warn declarer of his danger. He cannot afford to enter dummy with the ace of diamonds in order to try the club finesse. The finesse would lose to West's king, and West would lead another spade, forcing declarer to ruff and also giving East a chance to discard his last club.

After this sequence of plays, South would be unable to make his contract. If he drew trumps, he would not be able to ruff his two small clubs in the dummy. If South failed to draw trumps, he would not be able to make his ace of clubs.

Declarer makes his contract by the simple device of ignoring the finesse in clubs. After ruffing the third round of spades, South simply cashes the ace of clubs and gives up a club trick. Now nothing can prevent declarer from ruffing his remaining clubs with dummy's high trumps, after which the rest is easy.

Tornello Will Get Sentence in New York

New York, Feb. 2 (AP)—Rosario (Frank the Shiek) Tornello, 53, alleged leader of a coast to coast dope ring, will be sentenced Thursday on his guilty plea of conspiracy in the sale of some $60,000 worth of heroin.

Tornello suddenly changed his innocent plea Friday during his jury trial before Federal Judge John F. X. McGohey, and admitted one count of the five-count narcotics indictment against him.

The dapper Tornello was arrested last January in an Eastchester, N. Y., bar following a nationwide six-months pursuit by the FBI. The government said he was "connected with top French and Italian sources of narcotics illegally being shipped into the U. S."

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

We still repeat, having big time athletic stars in Kingston is a nice thing for the community but it can lead to ulcers.

A couple of years ago, Mayor Newkirk, police officials and just a plain guy had to call the base commander, the regimental commander and the company CO to insure Whitey Ford's appearance in a Police exhibition game at municipal stadium.

You must recall the occasion, but the folks involved in the promotion will never forget it. The telephone wires between Kingston and Fort Monmouth hummed long through the night.

And a fellow down in Newburgh by the name of Bill Ryan, the guy trying to organize the semi-pro league for 1953, rated a valuable assist.

During a conversation with the writer, the day before Ford's scheduled appearance, he said:

"Do you know Ford isn't coming to Kingston tomorrow night. Has to go on maneuvers or something. . . ."

That was all brother.

• Loes Appeared Despite Warning:

Take the Billy Loes appearance at the Lions Club benefit Thursday night.

Dan Parker, the Mirror "colyumist," obliged George Stuetzle, of Pine Plains, the manager of the Sherman White Bombardiers, with a line or two about Loes' appearance against White in Kingston.

The reaction in the Dodger front office was quick and decisive.

Pete Petropoulos, the New York promoter who has a ..tein with the Chesterfield folks, received a stiff notice from George Douris, Loes' personal manager, prohibiting The Golden Greek's showing here.

This was no surprise. It seemed fantastic from the outset that the Dodgers, if they were aware of it, would ever permit Loes to compete against the former LIU star. As a result of the basketball scandal, White is persona non grata in professional sports. But, since no word was forthcoming from Brooklyn or Douris it had to be presumed that Loes would play.

Well, Thursday night arrived. Loes and Petropoulos reached town simultaneously. The booking agent accosted Steutzle with a stinging letter from Douris, which quoted the Brooklyn front office in precise terms. Briefly . . . "Billy Loes is hereby strictly forbidden to . . ."

"So what?" snapped Steutzle.

"So, Loes doesn't play. He makes an appearance, says a few words and coaches the team," was Petropoulos' rejoinder.

"And have these people tear the house down," was Steutzle's quick retort.

"Nothing doing," he went on, "Loes plays or there isn't any ball game and we'll refund the money."

Steutzle's sudden jolt had its desired effect on Petropoulos, who is, after all a booking agent and it's very disconcerting to make a trip from Long Island to Kingston without getting your "cut."

"Okay, so Loes plays," he countered with strained reluctance, "but I still think the deal could have been loused up by that notice in Dan Parker's column."

"So, what," said Steutzle, who by now was getting slightly tepid under the collar. "Do you think you can keep a thing like this a secret?"

Loes lingered off to the side, disregarding the discussion. He seemed ready and willing to play and let the Dodger protests take care of themselves. He did play—seven minutes—proved himself a first class player and then succumbed to a lack of "basketball condition."

Incidentally, Petropoulos picked up his check later in the evening and by then Dan Parker and the Dodger squawks didn't seem so important.

But those big time stars . . . a sure shortcut to ulcers. Take it from a guy who knows.

Seton Hall Blasts Villanova; Given Chance for 30 Straight

New York, Feb. 2 (AP)—Nine games in the next 30 days will show whether a 1953 model basketball team can go through a season undefeated.

Seton Hall University from South Orange, N. J., has won its first 21 games. If it can win its remaining nine contests it will become the first team ever to go unbeaten through a 30-game schedule against major opposition.

The last school to turn in a perfect card for regular season games was Columbia in 1951-52. The Lions won 22 in a row, then bowed to Illinois in the first round of the NCAA tournament.

Seton Hall, top-ranked in the Associated Press poll, picked up its 21st triumph Saturday night against Villanova, 84-76.

This week the Pirates meet St. Bonaventure in Madison Square Garden.

After St. Bonaventure, Seton Hall will tangle with Siena, Muhlenberg, Villanova, Loyola of Chicago, Baldwin-Wallace, Dayton, Louisville and John Carroll.

Activity Resumes

Mid-year examinations generally over, basketball activity speeds up this week.

Second ranked Indiana returns after a week's layoff, meeting Butler University tonight and Northwestern Saturday.

Washington, No. 3, plays host to lowly Washington State Friday and Saturday night.

La Salle, No. 4, entertains Duquesne Saturday night and Kansas State, No. 5, visits Nebraska the same night.

The major conference picture at the start of second semester competition:

Ivy: Cornell (4-0), the surprise leader, faces a real test Saturday against Penn (3-1).

Southern: North Carolina (13-1) in front but the Conference title depends on the eight-team tournament at the end of the season.

Southeastern: Louisian State (6-0) is the leader.

Southwest: Texas Christian (4-1) on top.

Border: Arizona (5-1) lost its first conference game Saturday night to Arizona State of Tempe.

Pacific Coast: California (5-1) leads in the south. It's all Washington (8-0) up north.

Rocky Mountain: Idaho State (6-0) well in front.

Skyline Six: Brigham Young and Wyoming tied (7-1).

Big Seven: Oklahoma (3-0) leads but doesn't look like staying in front for long with Kansas State (2-1) and Kansas (3-2) pressing.

Missouri Valley: Oklahoma A. and M. (3-0) ahead of Tulsa and St. Louis.

Deal for Kiner Seems Assured

New York, Feb. 2 (AP) — If Ralph Kiner, the National League's home run king for the last seven years, leaves the Pittsburgh Pirates he probably will go to the Cincinnati Reds or Boston Braves.

Out of the wave of reports circulated during the major league meetings here over the weekend came these two definite facts concerning a deal for the 30-year-old slugger today:

1. The Reds have offered Pittsburgh five players, valued by Vice President Gabe Paul of Cincinnati at $300,000, for Kiner.

2. The Braves have handed Branch Rickey, general manager of the Pirates, a long list of players whom they are willing to include in a deal for the home run hitter.

There were other reports the Brooklyn Dodgers and the Philadelphia Phillies also were interested in Kiner but they were denied by top club officials. And still another had Wid Mathews, personnel director of the Chicago Cubs, offering $200,000 for the Pittsburgh star.

The offers of the Reds and Braves fits in with Rickey's pattern of disposing of ailing top notch players and rebuilding with younger talent.

Rickey, the past-master at double-talk declined to say what players had been offered or even with what clubs he had discussed a possible deal.

"Let's put it this way," he said. "A deal for Kiner definitely is contemplated and is nearer completion than 24 hours ago but it will not be completed as soon as another 24 hours.

Howe Paces Wings' Surge

Detroit, Feb. 2 (AP)—If other National Hockey League clubs will scan their record books, they'll see why the Detroit Red Wings are back on top of the standings—and why they're favored to stay there for the fifth season in a row.

There are two reasons. 1. Gordie Howe's terrific scoring pace, and 2. The fact that Howe, the NHL's leading scorer two years in succession, habitually is twice as effective after Jan. 1 as before.

Howe banged in two goals and assisted on three others last night as the Red Wings did in the Toronto Maple Leafs 5-1 in a rugged 19-penalty game here.

Howe outshone two other stars in the Sunday night NHL firmament. One was Joe Klukay, who slammed in the tying and winning goals to give the Boston Bruins a 4-3 win over the Montreal Canadiens, tied until then with the Detroiters after a brief stay atop the heap.

The other was goalie Lorne Worsley of the New York Rangers, who scored his second shutout of the season as the New Yorkers handed the Chicago Black Hawks their fourth loss in a row, 1-0.

Howe's five points (one for each goal and assist) ran his total points for the season to 67—37 goals and 30 assists.

Angels at Woodstock

One of the stellar attractions of the season is scheduled at the Woodstock School gym tonight, when the Varsity meets Harry's Angels, newly crowned first half champions of the YMCA League. The Varsity whipped the Angels earlier in the season.

Bob Arrix, Notre Dame's placekicking specialist, set a modern Irish record when he booted three field goals in 1952.

Snyder's Chicks of Rosendale posted 2083 net and 2392 gross to pace the "B" Division. Mabel Cudney led with 448 and Dolore Joyce rolled 437.

Helen Sutton, who dominated several events, anchored the Class "A" leaders with 138-178-209-525. Miss Schoonmaker fired 166-204-180.

Rose Mellert and June Van Kleeck, a substitute combination posted 1166 on a late Sunday shift to take over the Class A doubles leadership. Miss Mellert was a substitute.

Winnie Overfield is the gross singles leader in "A" with 577. She fired actual scores of 147-149-188 for 484. Charlotte Gray pounded 460 net and 562 gross to set the pace for the "B" singles keglerettes. Her actual scores were 135-190-135-460.

Tess Moss hit the "500" mark in the team event and doubles to take over the Class A all-events lead. She had 500, 509 and 438. Helen Sutton's 1450 in the "B" all-events topped the field to date. She had a 525 team score, 459 doubles and 456 singles.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

We still repeat, having big time athletic stars in Kingston is a nice thing for the community but it can lead to ulcers.

A couple of years ago, Mayor Newkirk, police officials and just a plain guy had to call the base commander, the regimental commander and the company CO to insure Whitey Ford's appearance in a Police exhibition game at municipal stadium.

You must recall the occasion, but the folks involved in the promotion will never forget it. The telephone wires between Kingston and Fort Monmouth hummed long through the night.

And a fellow down in Newburgh by the name of Bill Ryan, the guy trying to organize the semi-pro league for 1953, rated a valuable assist.

During a conversation with the writer, the day before Ford's scheduled appearance, he said:

"Do you know Ford isn't coming to Kingston tomorrow night. Has to go on maneuvers or something. . . ."

That was all brother.

• Loes Appeared Despite Warning:

Take the Billy Loes appearance at the Lions Club benefit Thursday night.

Dan Parker, the Mirror "colyumist," obliged George Stuetzle, of Pine Plains, the manager of the Sherman White Bombardiers, with a line or two about Loes' appearance against White in Kingston.

The reaction in the Dodger front office was quick and decisive.

Pete Petropoulos, the New York promoter who has a ..ticin with the Chesterfield folks, received a stiff notice from George Douris, Loes' personal manager, prohibiting The Golden Greek's showing here.

This was no surprise. It seemed fantastic from the outset that the Dodgers, if they were aware of it, would ever permit Loes to compete against the former LIU star. As a result of the basketball scandal, White is persona non grata in professional sports. But, since no word was forthcoming from Brooklyn or Douris it had to be presumed that Loes would play.

Well, Thursday night arrived. Loes and Petropoulos reached town simultaneously. The booking agent accosted Steutzle with a stinging letter from Douris, which quoted the Brooklyn front office in precise terms. Briefly . . . "Billy Loes is hereby strictly forbidden to . . ."

"So what?" snapped Steutzle.

"So, Loes doesn't play. He makes an appearance, says a few words and coaches the team," was Petropoulos' rejoinder.

"And have these people tear the house down," was Steutzle's quick retort.

"Nothing doing," he went on, "Loes plays or there isn't any ball game and we'll refund the money."

Steutzle's sudden jolt had its desired effect on Petropoulos, who is, after all a booking agent and it's very disconcerting to make a trip from Long Island to Kingston without getting your "cut."

"Okay, so Loes plays," he countered with strained reluctance, "but I still think the deal could have been loused up by that notice in Dan Parker's column."

"So, what," said Steutzle, who by now was getting slightly tepid under the collar. "Do you think you can keep a thing like this a secret?"

Loes lingered off to the side, disregarding the discussion. He seemed ready and willing to play and let the Dodger protests take care of themselves. He did play—seven minutes—proved himself a first class player and then succumbed to a lack of "basketball condition."

Incidentally, Petropoulos picked up his check later in the evening and by then Dan Parker and the Dodger squawks didn't seem so important.

But those big time stars . . . a sure shortcut to ulcers. Take it from a guy who knows.

Seton Hall Blasts Villanova; Given Chance for 30 Straight

New York, Feb. 2 (AP)—Nine games in the next 30 days will show whether a 1953 model basketball team can go through a season undefeated.

Seton Hall University from South Orange, N. J., has won its first 21 games. If it can win its remaining nine contests it will become the first team ever to go unbeaten through a 30-game schedule against major opposition.

The last school to turn in a perfect card for regular season games was Columbia in 1951-52. The Lions won 22 in a row, then bowed to Illinois in the first round of the NCAA tournament.

Seton Hall, top-ranked in the Associated Press poll, picked up its 21st triumph Saturday night against Villanova, 84-76.

This week the Pirates meet St. Bonaventure in Madison Square Garden.

Activity Resumes

Mid-year examinations generally over, basketball activity speeds up this week.

Second ranked Indiana returns after a week's layoff, meeting Butler University tonight and Northwestern Saturday.

Washington, No. 3, plays host to lowly Washington State Friday and Saturday night.

La Salle, No. 4, entertains Duquesne Saturday night and Kansas State, No. 5, visits Nebraska the same night.

The major conference picture at the start of second semester competition:

Ivy: Cornell (4-0), the surprise leader, faces a real test Saturday against Penn (3-1).

Southern: North Carolina (13-1) in front but the Conference title depends on the eight-team tournament at the end of the season.

Southeastern: Louisian State (6-0) is the leader.

Southwest: Texas Christian (4-1) on top.

Border: Arizona (5-1) lost its first conference game Saturday night to Arizona State of Tempe.

Pacific Coast: California (5-1) leads in the south. It's all Washington (8-0) up north.

Rocky Mountain: Idaho State (6-0) well in front.

Skyline Six: Brigham Young and Wyoming tied (7-1).

Big Seven: Oklahoma (3-0) leads but doesn't look like staying in front for long with Kansas State (2-1) and Kansas (3-2) pressing.

Missouri Valley: Oklahoma A. and M. (3-0) ahead of Tulsa and St. Louis.

Deal for Kiner Seems Assured

New York, Feb. 2 (AP) — If Ralph Kiner, the National League's home run king for the last seven years, leaves the Pittsburgh Pirates he probably will go to the Cincinnati Reds or Boston Braves.

Out of the wave of reports circulated during the major league meetings here over the weekend came these two definite facts concerning a deal for the 30-year-old slugger today:

1. The Reds have offered Pittsburgh five players, valued by Vice President Gabe Paul of Cincinnati at $300,000, for Kiner.

2. The Braves have handed Branch Rickey, general manager of the Pirates, a long list of players whom they are willing to include in a deal for the home run hitter.

There were other reports the Brooklyn Dodgers and the Philadelphia Phillies also were interested in Kiner but they were denied by top club officials. And still another had Wid Mathews, personnel director of the Chicago Cubs, offering $200,000 for the Pittsburgh star.

The offers of the Reds and Braves fits in with Rickey's pattern of disposing of ailing top notch players and rebuilding with younger talent.

Rickey, the past-master at double-talk declined to say what players had been offered or even with what clubs he had discussed a possible deal.

"Let's put it this way," he said. "A deal for Kiner definitely is contemplated and is nearer completion than 24 hours ago but it will not be completed as soon as another 24 hours.

Howe Paces Wings' Surge

Detroit, Feb. 2 (AP)—If other National Hockey League clubs will scan their record books, they'll see why the Detroit Red Wings are back on top of the standings—and why they're favored to stay there for the fifth season in a row.

There are two reasons. 1. Gordie Howe's terrific scoring pace, and 2. The fact that Howe, the NHL's leading scorer two years in succession, habitually is twice as effective after Jan. 1 as before.

Howe banged in two goals and assisted on three others last night as the Red Wings did in the Toronto Maple Leafs 5-1 in a rugged 19-penalty game here.

Howe outshone two other stars in the Sunday night NHL firmament. One was Joe Klukay, who slammed in the tying and winning goals to give the Boston Bruins a 4-3 win over the Montreal Canadiens, tied until then with the Detroiters after a brief stay atop the heap.

The other was goalie Lorne Worsley of the New York Rangers, who scored his second shutout of the season as the New Yorkers handed the Chicago Black Hawks their fourth loss in a row, 1-0.

Howe's five points (one for each goal and assist) ran his total points for the season to 67—37 goals and 30 assists.

Angels at Woodstock

One of the stellar attractions of the Woodstock School gym tonight, when the Varsity meets Harry's Angels, newly crowned first half champions of the YMCA League. The Varsity whipped the Angels earlier in the season.

Bob Arrix, Notre Dame's placekicking specialist, set a modern Irish record when he booted three field goals in 1952.

Snyder's Chicks of Rosendale posted 2083 net and 2392 gross to pace the "B" Division. Mabel Cudney led with 448 and Dolore Joyce rolled 437.

Johnson Raps TV Effect on Minors

New York, Feb. 2 (AP)—Sen. Edwin C. Johnson of Colorado says the major leagues' policy towards baseball television is dangerous and destructive and could wreck every minor league club in the country.

The senator, a Democrat and president of the Class A Western League, let loose with his blast last night at the annual dinner of the New York Baseball Writers. Most of the major league owners were in the audience.

He accused the majors of "conniving with a super salesman (for television) to take the last drop of blood in the minors territory" and he pleaded with the owners to wake up before they find themselves "screaming for Hollywood artists, make up men, script writers for the impire baiters, show technicians, producers and loud voiced directors."

Sen. Johnson said this salesman, whom he did not further identify, was making the rounds of the major league club owners trying to set up a television game of the week.

"Once the minors agree to a game a week they have taken the fatal plunge over Niagara Falls. * * * Once the minor league ice is broken here it will be seven days a week and goodbye Mr. Minor League," the senator declared.

Trying to Boost That Batting Average

Outfielder Irv Noren of the New York Yankees, who compiled an impotent .237 batting average last year, gets some special tutelage from the Old Master Casey Stengel. Noren was among a group of varsity and farm hands who reported for the opening of a two-weeks conditioning school at Glendale, Cal. Manager Stengel doffed his cap to get the benefit of a warm sun. AVOID TINY CLOSED TENTS FOR WINTER

TWO-MAN MOUNTAIN TYPE TENTS OF NYLON LIKE THE ONE ABOVE ARE TO BE AVOIDED FOR COLD WEATHER USE. THERE IS NOT ENOUGH VENTILATION OF FRESH AIR SO MOISTURE FROM BREATHING CONDENSES WITHIN TO FORM ICE AT BELOW FREEZING TEMPERATURES. SOME WARTIME TROOPS FROZE TO DEATH IN THESE CLOSED TENTS. REMEDY: REPLACE FRONT WITH ZIPPERED-IN NETTING AND A HOOD FOR KEEPING THE WEATHER OUT!

AN OPEN FRONT TENT WITH A FIRE IS BEST IF A TENT STOVE ISN'T USED!

Miron Keglers Shatter Record With 1112 Solo

Retain HVBL Lead By Two Games

The Standings

	Won	Lost
Miron Lumber	44	19
Veteran Cabs	42	21
Shanahans	41	22
Arlington Lanes	40	23
Elstons Sport	39	24

Miron Lumber shattered its own Hudson Valley League record for a high game with a 1112 blast Saturday night.

The Lumberjacks dropped the first game to a red hot Walden Merchant squad, 1057 to 1002, and racked up a 3120 series. But a fortuitous combination of circumstances kept the locals on top of the HVBL scramble by a two-game margin over the Veteran Cabs of Poughkeepsie.

The Cabs dealt Elston Sports' pennant hopes a severe jolt with a 3-0 sweep at Poughkeepsie, while Ellenville Shanahans toppled the Arlington Lanes three straight on the Ulster drives.

Rapp's Express lost three to the resurgent Middletown Bennetts at the Middie city.

Ferraro Hits 670

Johnny Ferraro, making his first appearance in three weeks, led with 670 (233-203-234) as Miron's hit for 1002-1006-1112. Hank Kemmerer bombed 203-233; Charlie Manfro 249-235-646; Harold Broskie had 233-204-633 and Larry Weishaupt 216-581. Russ Brophy anchored the Merchants with 210-226-618 and Ray Frisch pounded 213-213-611. Jim Mason rolled 230.

Baird Blasts 666

George Baird sparked the Cabs with a 666 blast (202-222-242) against Elstons, the Dutchess cagers rolling 1009-2908. Dick Rhea had 232 and Jake Charter 226. Phil Corrado rolled 224 and Dick Howard 204-536 for Kingston.

John Congolosi was top man for Bennetts Roofers with 231-618. Chris Gallo had 205-564 for Rapp's.

Johnson Raps TV Effect on Minors

New York, Feb. 2 (AP)—Sen. Edwin C. Johnson of Colorado says the major leagues' policy towards baseball television is dangerous and destructive and could wreck every minor league club in the country.

The senator, a Democrat and president of the Class A Western League, let loose with his blast last night at the annual dinner of the New York Baseball Writers. Most of the major league owners were in the audience.

He accused the majors of "conniving with a super salesman (for television) to take the last drop of blood in the minors territory" and he pleaded with the owners to wake up before they find themselves "screaming for Hollywood artists, make up men, script writers for the impire baiters, show technicians, producers and loud voiced directors."

Sen. Johnson said this salesman, whom he did not further identify, was making the rounds of the major league club owners trying to set up a television game of the week.

"Once the minors agree to a game a week they have taken the fatal plunge over Niagara Falls. * * * Once the minor league ice is broken here it will be seven days a week and goodbye Mr. Minor League," the senator declared.

Eisenhower Asks

country has "incontrovertible evidence that Soviet Russia possesses atomic weapons." Former President Truman had stirred up a controversy by expressing doubt in a recent interview that the Russians had a workable A-bomb.

4. Promised all action within his power to wipe out race segregation in the District of Columbia and in the armed forces. Beyond that, Eisenhower indicated he would work "through friendly conferences with those in authority in our states and cities" to seek civil rights progress.

5. Announced a new system of checking the loyalty of federal employes, together with a series of studies and surveys designed to end "waste and incompetence" in the Post Office and other departments.

Pledges Good Government

"Our people," Eisenhower said, "have demanded nothing less than good, efficient government. They shall get nothing less."

He asked Congress for a good bit of legislation—"corrective action" on the Taft-Hartley Act, for one thing, and an extension of the Government Reorganization Act.

Eisenhower's most important announcement — freeing Chiang Kai-Shek's Chinese Nationalists on Formosa to strike at the Communist-held China mainland — came as something of an anti-climax. Word of it had leaked in advance, and Gen. Douglas MacArthur among others commended it warmly.

With soldierlike bluntness, the new President stated his view of the fleet's "neutralizing" mission:

"This has meant, in effect, that the United States Navy was required to serve as a defensive arm of Communist China."

Truman issued the order on June 27, 1950, two days after the start of fighting in Korea. He directed the Seventh Fleet to protect Formosa against Communist invasion and to assure that the Nationalists did not attack the mainland. The explanation was that the order was designed to keep the Chinese Reds out of the Korean war.

Since 1950, Eisenhower recalled, the Reds have entered the war and, with Russian backing, he said, have turned down every peace overture from the United Nations.

"Consequently," the President said, "there is no longer any logic or sense in a condition that required the United States Navy to assume defensive responsibilities on behalf of the Chinese Communists, thus permitting those Communists, with greater impunity, to kill our soldiers and those of our United Nations allies in Korea.

Aggression Is Not Intent

"I am, therefore, issuing instructions that the Seventh Fleet no longer be employed to shield Communist China. This order implies no aggressive intent on our part. . . ."

Eisenhower disclosed another move in the Far Eastern conflict —"immediate increased attention to the development of additional Republic of Korea forces." This was in line with his campaign demand that Korean troops replace other UN forces in the front lines as soon as possible.

He said his foreign policy, in general, will envision "all peaceful methods and devices—except breaking faith with our friends."

Then—in apparent reference to the meetings Presidents Roosevelt and Truman attended at Yalta, Potsdam and elsewhere—the new President declared:

"We shall never acquiesce in the enslavement of any people in order to purchase fancied gains for ourselves."

"I shall ask the Congress at a later date to join in an appropriate resolution making clear that this government recognizes no kind of commitment contained in secret undertakings of the past with foreign governments which permit this kind of enslavement."

Projects Under Study

Turning to affairs at home, the Chief Executive outlined a series of projects already started by his administration:

A new federal loyalty and security program, supervised by Atty. Gen. Brownell, to protect the government from "false servants" and "to clear the atmosphere of that unreasoned suspicion that accepts rumor and gossip as substitutes for evidence." In another apparent dig at the Truman regime, Eisenhower said an administration which leaves its policing to Congress is only asking for "disorder and confusion."

Studies to straighten out the complexities of the defense establisment, revamp the tax laws to give small business a better break, and map legislation to replace the farm price support laws which expire at the end of 1954. He said the present "90 per cent of parity farm program will be enforced faithfully and a new program drafted to reduce "governmental interference in the farmers' affairs."

Eisenhower asked of Congress, among other things:

1—Early statehood for Hawaii. He didn't mention Alaska, which is normally Democratic while Hawaii votes Republican.

2—"Corrective action" to amend the Taft-Hartley labor law. Eisenhower said the Labor Department was making some specific recommendations and he'd send them along later. He did stress the view that government's role in labor-management relations should be mainly that of mediator, and he said the administration should avoid any hint of being "partial or punitive."

To Extend Old Age Law

3—Amendment of the McCarran-Walter immigration act to remove what he called discrimination against some groups of aliens. Opponents of the act have contended it discriminates against southern and eastern European countries.

4—Extension of the old age and survivors insurance law "to cover millions of citizens who have been left out of the social security system." The President also called for federal help to schools in areas which have a "proved need and proved lack of local income."

5—Extension of the reciprocal trade agreements act. He called, too, for greater efforts by European countries to achieve economic unity.

Eisenhower spoke with extreme gravity on the subject of finance.

"It is important," he said, "that all of us understand that this administration does not and cannot begin its task with a clean slate. Much already has been written on the record, beyond our power quickly to erase or to amend. This record includes our inherited burden of indebtedness and obligations and deficits."

Already, he went on, the national debt stands at more than 265 billion dollars, with another 80 billions committed for future spending.

Bills Form Big Burden

"The bills for payment of nearly all the 80 billion dollars of obligations will be presented during the next four years," Eisenhower said. "These bills, added to the current costs of government we must meet, make a formidable burden."

Wryly, the President interjected:

"Permit me this one understatement: to meet and to correct this situation will not be easy.

"Permit me this one assurance: every department head and I are determined to do everything we can to resolve it."

Eisenhower said every department head is hard at work trying to slash from his budget every item that can be spared. He urged state and local governments, as well as "interested groups of citizens," to restrain their demands on the treasury, too. And he went on:

"A balanced budget is an essential first measure in checking further depreciation in the buying power of the dollar. This is one of the critical steps to be taken to bring an end to planned inflation. Our purpose is to manage the government's finances so as to help and not hinder each family in balancing its own budget.

"Reduction of taxes will be justified only as we show we can succeed in bringing the budget control. As the budget is balanced and inflation checked, the burden that today stifles initiative can and must be eased.

"Until we can determine the extent to which expenditures can be reduced, it would not be wise to reduce our revenues."

As for rent and price controls, Eisenhower said the ones in force now haven't worked satisfactorily to check inflation and should be allowed to die. He added that if another round of inflation should begin he will ask Congress promptly for "such legislation as may be required" to cope with it.

Meantime, he said, "steps will be taken to eliminate controls in an orderly manner, and to terminate special agencies no longer needed for this purpose."

Defense Rental Favored

"It is obviously to be expected," Eisenhower said, "that the removal of these controls will result in individual price changes—some up, some down. But a maximum of freedom in market prices, as well as in collective bargaining, is characteristic of a truly free people."

One set of controls was spared: Rent control in defense areas where there's a critical shortage of housing. The President said federal controls should be continued long enough to give the states a chance to act.

Eisenhower didn't touch at all on one controversial subject—the offshore oil lands claimed by Texas, Louisiana and California.

He postponed, too, any recommendations on war veteran legislation.

And on a number of other subjects he presented only broad outlines with the details to be filled in by later messages.

He summed up what he described as "the grand labors" of his administration in these words:

"Application of our influence in world affairs with such fortitude and such foresight that it will deter aggression and eventually secure peace;

"Establishment of a national administration of such integrity and such efficiency that its honor at home will ensure respect abroad;

"Encouragement of those incentives that inspire creative initiative in our economy, so that its productivity may fortify freedom everywhere; and

MacArthur Favors Plan

"Dedication to the well-being of all our citizens and to the attainment of equality of opportunity for all, so that our nation will ever act with the strength of unity in every task to which it is called."

Gen. MacArthur, in a statement issued in New York Saturday night, had said the prospective order to the Seventh Fleet would "correct one of the strangest anomalies known to military history." MacArthur said it "should be supported by all loyal Americans irrespective of party."

Foresees Valley Industrial Future

20th Century Fox' Cinemascope Plan Presages New Era

Hollywood, Feb. 2 (AP)—Twentieth Century-Fox is converting at once to a big new photographic and sound system so realistic, a spokesman says, "a guy in the eighth row can kiss Marilyn Monroe."

The device is called cinemascope. It creates a third-dimension illusion, the studio announced yesterday, and presages an era "as far-reaching as the transfer from silent pictures to sound in 1927."

Fox's method permits filming in color and projection on a screen two and a half times ordinary size "so as to give almost life-like animation to the players. This creates the same feeling of audience participation as attendance at a performance by living players on the speaking stage."

Screens specially developed for extra brilliance may be any length desired to fit any theatre. The screen used in tests at the studio is 64 feet wide and 25 feet high and curves inward to a depth of five feet at the center.

"A theatre like New York's Roxy would use one 80 feet long," the studio said.

Simulates Third Dimension

"Cinemascope is a simple, inexpensive color film device which simulates third dimension to the extent that objects and actors seem to be part of the audience. Its stereophonic sound imparts additional life-like quality, as it moves across the screen with the action.

"Cinemascope will be made available to all studios, producers and theatres in the United States and to producers and theatres throughout the world as soon as additional equipment can be manufactured."

Fox announced the first cinemascope film in color "The Robe," based on Lloyd C. Douglass' novel, goes into production Feb. 16, with world-wide premieres planned for Oct. 1.

Meanwhile, three-dimension production is spreading through other studios.

Polarized Specs Necessary

Producers Bill Pine and Bill Thomas are shooting Sangaree in a two-camera, 3-B system developed by their releasing studio, Paramount. It requires viewers to wear polarized spectacles to get a three-dimensional effect. So does the Natural Vision System, first used with the film, Bwana Devil, which drew $212,000 worth of business in a four-week run here at Christmas.

Warner Brothers is shooting House of Wax in natural vision. Columbia starts Fort Ticonderoga in the same system in a week. M-G-M, with a similar system of its own, starts its first 3-B film, a western, in three weeks. Universal-International is working on a system of its own.

Fox says cinemascope requires no spectacles for viewers. The method needs only one standard camera and projector, with special lenses to create wide-angle scenes.

Cinerama, now on public view in New York, uses three cameras and three projectors.

More Than 850

sons were homeless in Holland, Belgium and the British Isles.

The danger to the Netherlands remained great. Gale winds which combined with abnormally high tides to cause the floods continued to whip the waters over hundreds of miles of sand dunes and connecting dikes which had held back the North Sea for centuries.

Toll Might Pass 1,000

Scores of bodies floated among vast seas of debris along Britain's battered east coast. Rescue officials feared the death toll might pass 1,000. On one British island —tiny Canvey at the mouth of the Thames—500 persons were missing.

A great army of British troops and civilians rushed by land and sea and air to snatch survivors from possible death in new tides.

In Holland, where much of the country is under sea level, some of it as much as 21 feet below, all resources were mobilized for the battle of the dikes. These are made of clay, tree branches, stone and asphalt. They have kept back the North Sea for centuries, permitting the Dutch to grow rich crops in the exposed bottomland and build prosperous cities on sea beds.

132 Perish as Ferry Sinks

To the mounting toll on land was added 132 persons drowned in the sinking of the ferry Princess Victoria off northern Ireland Saturday.

A U. S. Third Air Force spokesman said the known dead in England included six Americans—an airman, an airman's wife and four children—all drowned at their homes in the area of the U. S. bomber base of Sculthorpe, near Hunstanton on the north sea coast of Lincolnshire.

The spokesman said eight other Americans were missing, seven in the Hunstanton area and a sergeant at Bentwater base near Ipswich. There was also an unconfirmed report that a 14-year-old American boy was missing in the Bentwater area.

The air force withheld the names of all the dead and missing, pending notification of next of kin.

Resources are Mustered

Here in Holland and Belgium, the death roll mounted rapidly last night as the stricken little nations mustered all their resources to meet mounting dangers of disease and starvation. Search teams still were unable to contact many flooded areas.

The Dutch weather bureau warned that high winds today would continue to threaten the broken dikes. In Britain, the forecast was for fresh winds tending to "moderate slowly."

Here in The Netherlands, hundreds of persons were still stranded on rooftops and in trees as today dawned bleakly over a scene of devastation unparalleled in the country's history. Hardest hit were the provinces of Zeeland and northern Brabant, in southern Holland, the Frisian Isle of Texel, and the island of Walcheren, at mouth of the west Scheldt.

At some points the swirling floods were 30 feet deep. Farmers faced months and years of hard toil to reclaim the salt-damaged acres for agriculture.

Authorities estimated that areas populated by four million Dutch and Belgians were flooded.

Ships Are Overturned

The waters poured south into Belgium, flooding even wider areas of Flanders and turning the great port of Antwerp into a city of confusion. Telephones and electric lights were knocked out. Ships in drydocks were overturned.

More than 50 cities and towns messaged for emergency aid. Many others could not even be contacted. Emergency radio circuits crackled with a confused jumble of calls for aid.

Both Holland and Belgium proclaimed a state of emergency as thousands tried to plug the gaping holes in the dikes with sandbags or fought their way through the swirling, near-freezing waters seeking survivors. Many drowned in their homes before they could escape.

Juliana Is on Scene

Troops were rushed to help and those on leave were summoned back to emergency duty. The Netherlands' Queen Juliana and her 72-year-old mother, former Queen Wilhelmina, went to the flood area this morning to comfort the stricken.

Two battalions of French army engineers were dispatched to the stricken lowlands. Despite its own catastrophe across the channel, Britain's royal navy ordered four helicopters to Valkenberg, Holland, to assist.

Cabinet Is Summoned

U. S. Army forces in Germany sent a group of engineers and a small survey team. Lt. Gen. Manton S. Eddy, U. S. Army commander-in-chief in Europe, planned to follow up with a flying visit to see what help his forces could give.

Premier Willem Drees summoned the Dutch cabinet into emergency session. He planned to report to Parliament on the disaster tomorrow.

Across the channel, the English lowlands from the mouth of the Thames north to Yorkshire—the land called East Anglia — were inundated, at some points as far inland as three miles, by water six feet deep.

The flood even reached London as the Thames at high tide pushed into the streets of Putney, a southwest suburb. Water lapped at the base of Cleopatra's needle, the ancient Egyptian belisk standing on the embankment in the capital's heart.

100 Are Killed, 500 Missing on Island

Benfleet, Eng., Feb 2 (AP)—Raging seas which swept over tiny Canvey Island in the Thames estuary drowned at least 100 inhabitants and up to 500 others still are missing, rescue officials reported today.

Bodies still floated on the floodwaters today. These were not counted in the 100-mark death toll.

Police ordered compulsory evacuation of the remaining 2,000 islanders under threat of new high tides and polluted water supplies.

Canvey is 25 miles down the Thames river from London and lies near the exposed mouth of the river as it enters the sea.

Tug Walkout

ings here today. Federal Mediator Harry Winning said there was no plan as yet to bring both sides together to renew negotiations.

Promise of strike support by ILA President Joseph P. Ryan has posed the possibility of sympathy walkouts by longshoremen.

The traffic affected here ranged from ocean liners to city garbage scows.

In 1946, a similar stoppage caused great inconvenience in the city, including a "brownout" of lighting and conservation of heating in homes, industrial plants and other buildings.

City officials, directed by Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri, checked the city's fuel supplies and planned conservation.

The mayor reported there was no immediate danger of shortages which might curtail public utility services or public school operations. Power houses and other utilities in the city are dependent for coal and oil supplies on tugs which tow canal barges from New Jersey and aid oil tankers in berthing.

Negotiations between the employers, members of the Marine Towing and Transportation Employers Association, and the union on wage increases, welfare benefits and other contract terms collapsed despite the intervention of federal and New York city mediators. Contracts expired Saturday midnight.

The union sought wage increases between 30 and 50 per cent. Company negotiators offered five per cent. Pay scales here range from $1.36 an hour for deckhands to $2.35½ for some captains. Pay rates vary elsewhere.

Military cargoes here will move without interference, the union has promised. The armed services operate their town tugboats.

Fritz Kuhn Dies

Munich, Germany, Feb. 2 (AP)—The death of Fritz Kuhn, once the noisy U. S. leader of the Nazi German-American Bund, was disclosed yesterday more than a year after he died here in obscurity. Otto Gritschneder, Kuhn's former lawyer, said in answer to inquiries that Kuhn died Dec. 14, 1951, at the age of 55. Gritschneder did not know the cause of his death. Kuhn ended his checkered career as a poor chemist, and his death was not reported by the newspapers.

Salesmen's Cases Found

Officer Gurnsey Burger, Sr., reported to police headquarters at 9:50 a. m., Sunday, he had been informed that two salesmen's cases, reported stolen from a car at Broadway and Henry street, had been found in a car parked in the used car lot on Prospect near Liberty street. The cases, owned by Walter Max, of Glenford, were believed taken some time earlier by a drunk, the report said.

Half of Loot Found

New York, Feb. 2 (AP)—A thief who took $100,000 in jewelry from a 10-cent subway locker was without half his loot today because, police theorized, he lost his nerve and provided them with a key to another locker. The thief on Saturday jimmied several lockers before finding the gems in the subway locker where they had been placed by jewelry dealer Dante Brigliante.

Congressman Wharton, commenting on the proposed legislation, said that the earnings limitations was raised from $50 to $75 at the last session under a similar proposal. He believes this is the time to remove all restrictions for the trial period of the emergency, and if the measure proves successful, he will later move to make it permanent.

The cost of correspondence, investigation and bookkeeping under the present complicated system more than offsets any possible saving to the government. Congressman Wharton predicts that many changes in the law will be considered during the current session, and said he will support all desirable measures that will simplify the law and extend coverage to groups now excluded.

Eisenhower Asks

country has "incontrovertible evidence that Soviet Russia possesses atomic weapons." Former President Truman had stirred up a controversy by expressing doubt in a recent interview that the Russians had a workable A-bomb.

4. Promised all action within his power to wipe out race segregation in the District of Columbia and in the armed forces. Beyond that, Eisenhower indicated he would work "through friendly conferences with those in authority in our states and cities" to seek civil rights progress.

5. Announced a new system of checking the loyalty of federal employes, together with a series of studies and surveys designed to end "waste and incompetence" in the Post Office and other departments.

Pledges Good Government

"Our people," Eisenhower said, "have demanded nothing less than good, efficient government. They shall get nothing less."

He asked Congress for a good bit of legislation—"corrective action" on the Taft-Hartley Act, for one thing, and an extension of the Government Reorganization Act.

Eisenhower's most important announcement — freeing Chiang Kai-Shek's Chinese Nationalists on Formosa to strike at the Communist-held China mainland — came as something of an anti-climax. Word of it had leaked in advance, and Gen. Douglas MacArthur among others commended it warmly.

With soldierlike bluntness, the new President stated his view of the fleet's "neutralizing" mission:

"This has meant, in effect, that the United States Navy was required to serve as a defensive arm of Communist China."

Truman issued the order on June 27, 1950, two days after the start of fighting in Korea. He directed the Seventh Fleet to protect Formosa against Communist invasion and to assure that the Nationalists did not attack the mainland. The explanation was that the order was designed to keep the Chinese Reds out of the Korean war.

Since 1950, Eisenhower recalled, the Reds have entered the war and, with Russian backing, he said, have turned down every peace overture from the United Nations.

"Consequently," the President said, "there is no longer any logic or sense in a condition that required the United States Navy to assume defensive responsibilities on behalf of the Chinese Communists, thus permitting those Communists, with greater impunity, to kill our soldiers and those of our United Nations allies in Korea.

Aggression Is Not Intent

"I am, therefore, issuing instructions that the Seventh Fleet no longer be employed to shield Communist China. This order implies no aggressive intent on our part. . . ."

Eisenhower disclosed another move in the Far Eastern conflict —"immediate increased attention to the development of additional Republic of Korea forces." This was in line with his campaign demand that Korean troops replace other UN forces in the front lines as soon as possible.

He said his foreign policy, in general, will envision "all peaceful methods and devices—except breaking faith with our friends."

Then—in apparent reference to the meetings Presidents Roosevelt and Truman attended at Yalta, Potsdam and elsewhere—the new President declared:

"We shall never acquiesce in the enslavement of any people in order to purchase fancied gains for ourselves."

"I shall ask the Congress at a later date to join in an appropriate resolution making clear that this government recognizes no kind of commitment contained in secret undertakings of the past with foreign governments which permit this kind of enslavement."

Projects Under Study

Turning to affairs at home, the Chief Executive outlined a series of projects already started by his administration:

A new federal loyalty and security program, supervised by Atty. Gen. Brownell, to protect the government from "false servants" and "to clear the atmosphere of that unreasoned suspicion that accepts rumor and gossip as substitutes for evidence." In another apparent dig at the Truman regime, Eisenhower said an administration which leaves its policing to Congress is only asking for "disorder and confusion."

Studies to straighten out the complexities of the defense establisment, revamp the tax laws to give small business a better break, and map legislation to replace the farm price support laws which expire at the end of 1954. He said the present "90 per cent of parity farm program will be enforced faithfully and a new program drafted to reduce "governmental interference in the farmers' affairs."

Eisenhower asked of Congress, among other things:

1—Early statehood for Hawaii. He didn't mention Alaska, which is normally Democratic while Hawaii votes Republican.

2—Corrective action" to amend the Taft-Hartley labor law. Eisenhower said the Labor Department was making some specific recommendations and he'd send them along later. He did stress the view that government's role in labor-management relations should be mainly that of mediator, and he said the administration should avoid any hint of being "partial or punitive."

To Extend Old Age Law

3—Amendment of the McCarran-Walter immigration act to remove what he called discrimination against some groups of aliens. Opponents of the act have contended it discriminates against southern and eastern European countries.

4—Extension of the old age and survivors insurance law "to cover millions of citizens who have been left out of the social security system." The President also called for federal help to schools in areas which have a "proved need and proved lack of local income."

5—Extension of the reciprocal trade agreements act. He called, too, for greater efforts by European countries to achieve economic unity.

Eisenhower spoke with extreme gravity on the subject of finance.

"It is important," he said, "that all of us understand that this administration does not and cannot begin its task with a clean slate. Much already has been written on the record, beyond our power quickly to erase or to amend. This record includes our inherited burden of indebtedness and obligations and deficits."

Already, he went on, the national debt stands at more than 265 billion dollars, with another 80 billions committed for future spending.

Bills Form Big Burden

"The bills for payment of nearly all the 80 billion dollars of obligations will be presented during the next four years," Eisenhower said. "These bills, added to the current costs of government we must meet, make a formidable burden."

Wryly, the President interjected:

"Permit me this one understatement: to meet and to correct this situation will not be easy.

"Permit me this one assurance: every department head and I are determined to do everything we can to resolve it."

Eisenhower said every department head is hard at work trying to slash from his budget every item that can be spared. He urged state and local governments, as well as "interested groups of citizens," to restrain their demands on the treasury, too. And he went on:

"A balanced budget is an essential first measure in checking further depreciation in the buying power of the dollar. This is one of the critical steps to be taken to bring an end to planned inflation. Our purpose is to manage the government's finances so as to help and not hinder each family in balancing its own budget.

"Reduction of taxes will be justified only as we show we can succeed in bringing the budget control. As the budget is balanced and inflation checked, the burden that today stifles initiative can and must be eased.

"Until we can determine the extent to which expenditures can be reduced, it would not be wise to reduce our revenues."

As for rent and price controls, Eisenhower said the ones in force now haven't worked satisfactorily to check inflation and should be allowed to die. He added that if another round of inflation should begin he will ask Congress promptly for "such legislation as may be required" to cope with it.

Meantime, he said, "steps will be taken to eliminate controls in an orderly manner, and to terminate special agencies no longer needed for this purpose."

Defense Rental Favored

"It is obviously to be expected," Eisenhower said, "that the removal of these controls will result in individual price changes—some up, some down. But a maximum of freedom in market prices, as well as in collective bargaining, is characteristic of a truly free people."

One set of controls was spared: Rent control in defense areas where there's a critical shortage of housing. The President said federal controls should be continued long enough to give the states a chance to act.

Eisenhower didn't touch at all on one controversial subject—the offshore oil lands claimed by Texas, Louisiana and California.

He postponed, too, any recommendations on war veteran legislation.

And on a number of other subjects he presented only broad outlines with the details to be filled in by later messages.

He summed up what he described as "the grand labors" of his administration in these words:

"Application of our influence in world affairs with such fortitude and such foresight that it will deter aggression and eventually secure peace;

"Establishment of a national administration of such integrity and such efficiency that its honor at home will ensure respect abroad;

"Encouragement of those incentives that inspire creative initiative in our economy, so that its productivity may fortify freedom everywhere; and

MacArthur Favors Plan

"Dedication to the well-being of all our citizens and to the attainment of equality of opportunity for all, so that our nation will ever act with the strength of unity in every task to which it is called."

Gen. MacArthur, in a statement issued in New York Saturday night, had said the prospective order to the Seventh Fleet would "correct one of the strangest anomalies known to military history." MacArthur said it "should be supported by all loyal Americans irrespective of party."

Foresees Valley Industrial Future

More Than 850

sons were homeless in Holland, Belgium and the British Isles.

The danger to the Netherlands remained great. Gale winds which combined with abnormally high tides to cause the floods continued to whip the waters over hundreds of miles of sand dunes and connecting dikes which had held back the North Sea for centuries.

Toll Might Pass 1,000

Scores of bodies floated among vast seas of debris along Britain's battered east coast. Rescue officials feared the death toll might pass 1,000. On one British island —tiny Canvey at the mouth of the Thames—500 persons were missing.

A great army of British troops and civilians rushed by land and sea and air to snatch survivors from possible death in new tides.

In Holland, where much of the country is under sea level, some of it as much as 21 feet below, all resources were mobilized for the battle of the dikes. These are made of clay, tree branches, stone and asphalt. They have kept back the North Sea for centuries, permitting the Dutch to grow rich crops in the exposed bottomland and build prosperous cities on sea beds.

132 Perish as Ferry Sinks

To the mounting toll on land was added 132 persons drowned in the sinking of the ferry Princess Victoria off northern Ireland Saturday.

A U. S. Third Air Force spokesman said the known dead in England included six Americans—an airman, an airman's wife and four children—all drowned at their homes in the area of the U. S. bomber base of Sculthorpe, near Hunstanton on the north sea coast of Lincolnshire.

The spokesman said eight other Americans were missing, seven in the Hunstanton area and a sergeant at Bentwater base near Ipswich. There was also an unconfirmed report that a 14-year-old American boy was missing in the Bentwater area.

The air force withheld the names of all the dead and missing, pending notification of next of kin.

Resources are Mustered

Here in Holland and Belgium, the death roll mounted rapidly last night as the stricken little nations mustered all their resources to meet mounting dangers of disease and starvation. Search teams still were unable to contact many flooded areas.

The Dutch weather bureau warned that high winds today would continue to threaten the broken dikes. In Britain, the forecast was for fresh winds tending to "moderate slowly."

Here in The Netherlands, hundreds of persons were still stranded on rooftops and in trees as today dawned bleakly over a scene of devastation unparalleled in the country's history. Hardest hit were the provinces of Zeeland and northern Brabant, in southern Holland, the Frisian Isle of Texel, and the island of Walcheren, at mouth of the west Scheldt.

At some points the swirling floods were 30 feet deep. Farmers faced months and years of hard toil to reclaim the salt-damaged acres for agriculture.

Authorities estimated that areas populated by four million Dutch and Belgians were flooded.

Ships Are Overturned

The waters poured south into Belgium, flooding even wider areas of Flanders and turning the great port of Antwerp into a city of confusion. Telephones and electric lights were knocked out. Ships in drydocks were overturned.

More than 50 cities and towns messaged for emergency aid. Many others could not even be contacted. Emergency radio circuits crackled with a confused jumble of calls for aid.

Both Holland and Belgium proclaimed a state of emergency as thousands tried to plug the gaping holes in the dikes with sandbags or fought their way through the swirling, near-freezing waters seeking survivors. Many drowned in their homes before they could escape.

Juliana Is on Scene

Troops were rushed to help and those on leave were summoned back to emergency duty. The Netherlands' Queen Juliana and her 72-year-old mother, former Queen Wilhelmina, went to the flood area this morning to comfort the stricken.

Two battalions of French army engineers were dispatched to the stricken lowlands. Despite its own catastrophe across the channel, Britain's royal navy ordered four helicopters to Valkenberg, Holland, to assist.

Cabinet Is Summoned

U. S. Army forces in Germany sent a group of engineers and a small survey team. Lt. Gen. Manton S. Eddy, U. S. Army commander-in-chief in Europe, planned to follow up with a flying visit to see what help his forces could give.

Premier Willem Drees summoned the Dutch cabinet into emergency session. He planned to report to Parliament on the disaster tomorrow.

Across the channel, the English lowlands from the mouth of the Thames north to Yorkshire—the land called East Anglia — were inundated, at some points as far inland as three miles, by water six feet deep.

The flood even reached London as the Thames at high tide pushed into the streets of Putney, a southwest suburb. Water lapped at the base of Cleopatra's needle, the ancient Egyptian belisk standing on the embankment in the capital's heart.

100 Are Killed, 500 Missing on Island

Benfleet, Eng., Feb 2 (AP)—Raging seas which swept over tiny Canvey Island in the Thames estuary drowned at least 100 inhabitants and up to 500 others still are missing, rescue officials reported today.

Bodies still floated on the floodwaters today. These were not counted in the 100-mark death toll.

Police ordered compulsory evacuation of the remaining 2,000 islanders under threat of new high tides and polluted water supplies.

Canvey is 25 miles down the Thames river from London and lies near the exposed mouth of the river as it enters the sea.

Tug Walkout

ings here today. Federal Mediator Harry Winning said there was no plan as yet to bring both sides together to renew negotiations.

Promise of strike support by ILA President Joseph P. Ryan has posed the possibility of sympathy walkouts by longshoremen.

The traffic affected here ranged from ocean liners to city garbage scows.

In 1946, a similar stoppage caused great inconvenience in the city, including a "brownout" of lighting and conservation of heating in homes, industrial plants and other buildings.

City officials, directed by Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri, checked the city's fuel supplies and planned conservation.

The mayor reported there was no immediate danger of shortages which might curtail public utility services or public school operations. Power houses and other utilities in the city are dependent for coal and oil supplies on tugs which tow canal barges from New Jersey and aid oil tankers in berthing.

Negotiations between the employers, members of the Marine Towing and Transportation Employers Association, and the union on wage increases, welfare benefits and other contract terms collapsed despite the intervention of federal and New York city mediators. Contracts expired Saturday midnight.

The union sought wage increases between 30 and 50 per cent. Company negotiators offered five per cent. Pay scales here range from $1.36 an hour for deckhands to $2.35½ for some captains. Pay rates vary elsewhere.

Military cargoes here will move without interference, the union has promised. The armed services operate their town tugboats.

20th Century Fox' Cinemascope Plan Presages New Era

Hollywood, Feb. 2 (AP)—Twentieth Century-Fox is converting at once to a big new photographic and sound system so realistic, a spokesman says, "a guy in the eighth row can kiss Marilyn Monroe."

The device is called cinemascope. It creates a third-dimension illusion, the studio announced yesterday, and presages an era "as far-reaching as the transfer from silent pictures to sound in 1927."

Fox's method permits filming in color and projection on a screen two and a half times ordinary size "so as to give almost life-like animation to the players. This creates the same feeling of audience participation as attendance at a performance by living players on the speaking stage."

Screens specially developed for extra brilliance may be any length desired to fit any theatre. The screen used in tests at the studio is 64 feet wide and 25 feet high and curves inward to a depth of five feet at the center.

"A theatre like New York's Roxy would use one 80 feet long," the studio said.

Simulates Third Dimension

"Cinemascope is a simple, inexpensive color film device which simulates third dimension to the extent that objects and actors seem to be part of the audience. Its stereophonic sound imparts additional life-like quality as it moves across the screen with the action.

"Cinemascope will be made available to all studios, producers and theatres in the United States and to producers and theatres throughout the world as soon as additional equipment can be manufactured."

Fox announced the first cinemascope film in color "The Robe," based on Lloyd C. Douglass' novel, goes into production Feb. 16, with world-wide premieres planned for Oct. 1.

Meanwhile, three-dimension production is spreading through other studios.

Polarized Specs Necessary

Producers Bill Pine and Bill Thomas are shooting Sangaree in a two-camera, 3-B system developed by their releasing studio, Paramount. It requires viewers to wear polarized spectacles to get a three-dimensional effect. So does the Natural Vision System, first used with the film, Bwana Devil, which drew $212,000 worth of business in a four-week run here at Christmas.

Warner Brothers is shooting House of Wax in natural vision. Columbia starts Fort Ticonderoga in the same system in a week. M-G-M, with a similar system of its own, starts its first 3-B film, a western, in three weeks. Universal-International is working on a system of its own.

Fox says cinemascope requires no spectacles for viewers. The method needs only one standard camera and projector, with special lenses to create wide-angle scenes.

Cinerama, now on public view in New York, uses three cameras and three projectors.

Pupils Below Grade Level

Editor, The Freeman:

I was very interested in the admirable if misplaced decision by local school officials to "help" so-called "slow" children in high school get up to grade and the emphasis put on restriction of social and sports participation as an incentive to improve grades.

I say misplaced because the time to start helping these children is in the lower grades of grammar school but there is no help there. It is far too late to think about it after the formative years have passed.

Even in MJM, the library has been "reaarranged" to accommodate "slow" readers.

The fact that such a move was deemed advisable should make authorities at least ask why should this be necessary.

They could use a half dozen remedial reading classes at MJM. Not having them, they can help only those just a little below grade level. So I was told.

In the grammar schools, the same situation exists. There has been some talk of having a teacher for speech defects. I do not know how many children need this, but I do know that in comparison with the need for reading help it is like finding a needle in a hay stack.

Now regarding teachers. The majority of them put their hearts in their work, but they are hampered in many respects:

There are so many "extra activities" that in reality a teacher has little time for fundamental teaching. She also is overwhelmed with meetings, reports, notices and the grouping system.

Also for some reason that I do not understand a teacher today does not seem to be allowed to use her own judgment or give her own opinion.

Off the record, many of them do not approve of the present set-up. I do not think any school program can be successfully carried out under these circumstances.

Anyone who has ever worked in a machine shop will tell you that often after experts have made countless blueprints and special fixtures for jobs that when the job reaches the machinist the plans that worked so well in theory prove unusable in actual production and the worker must from odds and ends make something that will work.

A teacher long trained in the school of every day experience should be given the same freedom of judgment, instead of having to follow a top-heavy schedule of formulated plans that leave no time for the basic essential help she knows some of her pupils need.

The popular theory today is to educate the "whole" child. Singing, dancing, sports, etc., so that he may be "well and adjusted." That is a lovely thought and indeed has its place but too much emphasis is placed on it. A child who has difficulty with reading and therefore cannot hold his own in other subjects is far from well adjusted. This child will suffer far more in later life than one who can't sing or dance or play basketball.

Parents, if they so desire, and have children with actual talent can have it developed by their own choice.

The heart-breaking thing about the reading situation is that there is no organized program to help.

Parents have to sacrifice financially for years to try and correct these difficulties outside of school. This is stop-gap to say the least as there are not many tutors. The majority of parents have either been beaten into complete discouragement or found the long financial strain too great. They can only stand by and helplessly watch a child perfectly able to learn reading if given a little extra help, sink deeper and deeper into utter desolation where there is no time or provision to remedy what is not a rare but a widespread deplorable situation, that surely has a solution if we but open our eyes and openly admit that the situation does exist.

Groundhogs Differ On Winter Ahead; Some View Shadow

Groundhogs and their shadows are going to give the weather men and believers in the shadow school some trouble this trip—statewide, that is.

An Associated Press Albany report said skies were sunny in eastern New York, but cloudy west of Syracuse.

This means the critters were and weren't seeing shadows, and the sudden cold spell after last week's mild weather didn't offer them much incentive to come out, anyway.

10 Above in City

Temperatures ranged from eight below zero at Massena to 15 above in New York city. The overnight low in Kingston was 10 above at 5 a. m. Buffalo and Poughkeepsie reported 9 above, Albany 8 and Glens Falls 2 above.

Tradition says if the sun shines on Feb. 2, the groundhog may see his shadow and burrow in for six more weeks to bring more cold weather. He's getting off to a bad start around here for having seen his shadow because the weather bureau said "not so cold" tonight.

Reports Neck Injury

Raymond W. Garraghan, of 10 Kiersted avenue, reported a neck injury, following a truck-car collision at Albany and Roosevelt avenues at about 5 p. m., Saturday. Garraghan said he was headed northeast on Albany avenue in a pickup truck, had stopped to let a car come out of Roosevelt avenue, and a sedan owned and operated by John Raskoski, of Sunset Park, came in contact with the truck.

Nine of 10 Americans worked at producing food in Revolutionary times; today only one in five works on farms or produces foods.
